MRS. ALICE DOW

Salisbury jail-breaker who accompanied Mrs. Doane when later abandoned her children, and for whom police are searching.

"TOO SLOW;" BABES ARE VICTIMS

Abandonment by Salisbury Mother of Her Children Another Small-Town Tragedy

Too slow.

The honey-laden breezes, small town folks, neighbors who talk about home-made jam, old ladies who ask you "Do you knit?" the fellow who borrows the lawnmower, the old one-horse watering cart, barrel shaped, that creaks along the dusty road on hot Summer days while the kids, bare of foot, chase in its splashy wake. Homely and wholesome, but—

Too slow.

Another village has another tragedy. This time a flapper mother abandons her children and flees the small town for the city and the lights that are always bright. The village was Salisbury and for Vivian Jaques Doane it was too slow.

So she deserted her babies, Frankie, two, and Lillian, seven months, in Shepherd avenue, Roxbury, and fled small town life for good. While her young carpenter husband, Roger Doane, mourns this rebuff from life, police of half a dozen cities are searching for Vivian.

She is wanted for abandonment and also for stealing $140 from the

MR. AND MRS. DOANE AND VIVIAN

HARVEY, EX-DRY AGENT HELD IN "BOOTLEG TRUST" PLOT

Harold L. Harvey, former prohibition agent, charged with conspiring to form a "Bootlegers' Trust," was arraigned today before Federal Judge Lowell and held in $10,000 bail for trial.

Harvey was caught by two revenue service men and Patrolman E. W. Schroefel of Malden police in a camp at Martin's Pond, North Reading, after a six months' hunt by Federal authorities which extended all over the United States and Canada.

Harvey was with his wife and children when arrested. He is jointly charged with Aldemar Grandchamp of Holyoke, Joseph Weisenberg of Holyoke and John W. Roach of Springfield, with conspiracy to bribe and the handing of a bribe of $250 to Prohibition Agent Warren S. Fielding in connection with the alleged attempt to organize the "Bootleggers' Trust."

GIRL KILLED WHILE TRYING TO ESCAPE CHARITY HOME

New York, July 18.—Fourteen-year-old Madelina Russo, arrested at the marriage license bureau in June with a man she wanted to marry, was killed early today when a rope of bed sheets on which she was escaping from the Children's Society Home on upper Fifth avenue, parted and dropped her to the pavement.

$250,000 IN RUM IS LANDED

Cargoes Brought Into Boston Harbor in Daylight on Sloop's Keel

Prize cargoes of Scotch whiskey have been run into Boston harbor in broad daylight the past week by means of hooks attached to the fin keel of a forty-foot sloop.

Employing a rope tackle which circled the hull like a belt, the rum-runners lowered the liquor, baled in burlap, over the side and then drew it along the bottom until the bagging caught in specially fashioned hooks jutting from the iron keel.

The guide rope held the whiskey close to the hull so that it was comparatively easy to secrete the cargo when running close to shore.

Generally the smugglers would wait for a favorable wind before running to a landing either at the Narrow Gauge pier next to Point Shirley Yacht Club, Winthrop, or else to a spot near South Boston Yacht Club.

WORTH $250,000.

Whiskey estimated at more than $250,000 in value has been landed in Boston harbor the past fortnight, it is understood.

A large part of this has come ashore at Point Shirley. A consignment of 104 bags was landed there today. Each bag is supposed to have held at least six bottles.

Italian fishermens' boats are used for ferrying whiskey from a mother ship lying off in Broad Sound, near Graves Light, to the Winthrop and South Boston shores.

According to information supplied by one of the men engaged in rum running, five whiskey ships, one a steam trawler and another a tramp steamer—have sent their contraband cargo to Boston in less than two weeks' time while they steamed

TELEPHONE STRIKE IS NEAR END

Committee of Girls Meet Officers of the Company in Long Conference

The telephone strike may be settled today.

Late this afternoon Miss Julia O'Conner with three of the striking operators, members of one of their union's committees, went into conference at the executive offices of the telephone company at No. 50 Oliver street with General Manager George H. Dresser.

The conference was said to presage the end of the strike.

After an hour's talk the conference was still in progress.

During the past few days there have been indications the girls would be willing to call off the strike if they got their jobs back. The company intimated some of the strikers might be taken back.

The operators union of which Miss O'Conor is president is known as the Telephone Operators Department of the Brotherhood of International Telephone Workers.

It became known before the conferences that twenty-two striking operators applied for reinstatement today, mostly in the Providence exchange, and were taken back to work.

Lawrence Night Service Cut to Protect Girls

Lawrence, July 18.—Night telephone service will be restricted to emergency calls for the duration of the strike, Manager Fred G. Cheney of the telephone company announced today in a statement in which he bitterly flayed the police.

Charging them with failure to "up-

DOCTOR GIVES UP IN BOMB PLOT

By BERT FORD

Louis Mansolilli, optician, who surrendered to the Chelsea police on the charge of mailing high explosive bombs to Mrs. Grace Lewis, a comely widow, of No. 192 Shurtleff street, Chelsea, was to be arraigned today before United States Commissioner Hayes at the Federal Building.

The technical charge against Mansolilli is that he "knowingly sent an infernal machine through the United States mail." He spent the night in a cell at Chelsea police headquarters, unable to raise $10,000 bail.

The dapper little optician, father of eight children, will fight the charge made against him by the Federal government and his former "soul-mate."

He denied that he ever threatened Mrs. Lewis' life or sent bombs to

22 SEAPLANES FLY TO N. E. FOR MANEUVERS OFF COAST

New York, July 18.—Twenty-two naval seaplanes took to the air from the Hudson River at 9 o'clock today for Newport, R. I., to participate in manoeuvres off the New England Coast with the surface fleet. The planes left in threes. They were ordered to stop at Gravesend Bay for final inspection. From Gravesend Bay they will fly to Newport in sixes.

The planes were manned by 158 men. The mothership Wright left yesterday to await her fledglings.

BRIDE SLAIN; HUSBAND DYING; LATTER HURT IN R.R. CRASH

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 18 (I.N.S.).—Mrs. Julia Coyne, 18, beautiful bride of five months, today was found murdered in her "Honeymoon Cottage" at Port Perry, near Brad dock, her head had been battered in apparently as she lay asleep.

Her father, John Conroy, discovered the body when he went to tell her that her husband Patrick Coyne, lay close to death in a Pittsburgh Hospital with both legs cut off as the result of a railroad accident last night. The girl had been dead some time.

The county detective force has started a hunt for the girl's slayer.

MYSTERY WOMAN WITNESS IN PETERS DEATH PROBE

White Plains, N. Y., July 18 (I.N.S.).—Another element of mystery entered the secret Grand Jury investigation of the alleged slaying of Clarence E. Peters, former marine, by Walter S. Ward, son of the millionaire baker, when Sheriff Charles J. Werner of Westchester County appeared in the witness room today with a well-dressed woman. Werner said she was expected to testify today.

Secrecy surrounding the investigation made it impossible to learn the young woman's connection with the Ward-Peters affair.

CASH, GEMS, NOTES ARE STOLEN

Grossmans Awake With Headache and Find Their House Ransacked

"Ether burglars" drugged Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell B. Grossman of No. 51 Wilcock street, Dorchester, today and then robbed their home.

Prying loose a screen, the thieves crawled into the bed room where they carefully closed all the windows and then applied the dope to the sleeping victims.

Then they ransacked every nook and corner, dumping everything on the floor and choosing only the choicest of the valuables.

They took two diamond rings worth around $1,300, $240 in cash, a gold watch, some ear rings and a number of papers.

Included in the loot were notes due Mr. Grossman next week amounting to $1,500, his commission as administrator of his mother's estate, mortgages, personal correspondence and his automobile registration and license.

He has advertised a reward for the return of the papers.

AIR HEAVY WITH ETHER.

Describing his experience Mr. Grossman said today: "I awoke this morning with a most peculiar feeling and a splitting headache. The first thing I noted was that all the

WILSON TO SHIFT PATROLMEN

Several patrolmen of the Boston force will be transferred to other stations tonight at their own request, according to Police Commissioner Wilson. No officers will be affected by the transfer. The commissioner announced 35 new men will be taken into the force next week and assigned to the traffic division.

THREE AUTOISTS ARE KILLED AS FREIGHT RAMS MACHINE

Freehold, N. J., July 18.—A. S. Curtis, eighty-three, a farmer; his wife, Mrs. Emma Curtis, sixty-five, and Arthur Fletcher, forty-five, another farmer, all of Hamilton, were killed today when their automobile was struck by a Pennsylvania freight train at a crossing.

her or ever made or dabbled with infernal machines.

"This is a bunch of lies" Mansolilli silence flowed through the bars to Inspector Thomas F. Quigley. "I gave myself up because I am innocent and have nothing to fear."

Mansolilli claimed that he spent the day on the road selling optical supplies and that when he saw in the newspapers that the authorities wanted him, he telephoned to former Representative Thomas Carleton, bail commissioner, that he would surrender at headquarters at 8:30. He swung into Chelsea square in his touring car five minutes ahead of time and defiantly strode up to the desk and announced that he was there to face any charges.

He was booked, escorted across the street to a studio and photographed for the "gallery," and locked up in a cell. He sent for his wife and oldest son and retained Attorney Louis H. Kirman. He was turned over to the Federal authorities today.

HOME SHADOWED.

Officers shadowed his home at No. 81 Beacon street all day.

The police think Mansolilli was concealed by friends in Chelsea until he decided to face the music.

The man whom the government accuses of sending three bombs to Mrs. Lewis, the last of which exploded and injured the arm of Mrs. Sadie Bennett, sister-in-law of Mrs. Lewis, was smartly dressed in a gray business suit. His heavy-rimmed glasses and black moustache give him a professional appearance.

BOILING WITH ANGER.

He was boiling over with anger. He stuck his tongue out at photographers and fumed when told he must spend the night in a cell. In addition to taking samples of paper and twine from Mansolilli's home, the officers forced him on Monday to write Mrs. Lewis' name and address first with a pen and later on a typewriter.

It was noted that the suspect used the abbreviation "str." for street. This same abbreviation appeared on the wrapper on the bomb which exploded in Mrs. Lewis' home Saturday afternoon. The address on the brown paper wrapper had been typewritten.

EXHIBIT IN CASE.

Specimens which the officers directed Mansolilli to make on the typewriter at his home will be used as exhibits in the case. Ribbon markings and letter characteristics will be subjected to an expert for comparison, it was said today.

Letters and postcards which Mansolilli sent to Mrs. Lewis contain the abbreviation "str." for street, as the published specimen of a card mailed May 2, last, shows. This card bore Mrs. Lewis' address printed in ink. A large question mark preceded six crosses indicating "kisses." This is considered an important exhibit in that it was mailed two days before Mrs. Harper received the first bomb.

PREVIOUS BOMBS.

Late disclosures show that the first bomb was concealed in a doll's bureau, which Mrs. Lewis received by parcel post. The trigger fuse burned but the bomb failed to explode when Mrs. Lewis opened one of the tiny drawers. She turned the infernal machine over to the police. That was the one which State Chemist Wedger is reported to have said contained enough high explosive to wipe out a family.

The second bomb, the most ingenious of the three, was not mailed. That was fashioned of plaster paris in the form of an incandescent lamp with tin lining and a regulation lamp socket and chain attached.

It was substituted for the incandescent light in Mrs. Lewis' front hall on the night of June 12, the plan of the inventor being to have it explode when Mrs. Lewis pulled the chain in the dark. That, too, contained powder and bits of metal, but the mechanism proved defective.

The third bomb concealed in a hollowed-out A. L. A. register and mailed parcel post last Saturday was made of tin and a six-inch length of steam pipe filled with shot and bolts and bits of metal to serve as shrapnel. When Mrs. Sadie Bennett removed the wrapper and opened the cover of the book the spring was released. She was knocked unconscious and her arm and hand were lacerated. Bits of metal were imbedded in the wall.

Mrs. Lewis told the authorities that she has long feared Mansolilli would make good threats to disfigure her features with vitrol or a razor.

"He threatened many times to mar my looks so no man could love me as he did," she said. "One day when I was leaving his office he started at me with a razor and if a man hadn't appeared on the stairs he would have cut me.

"That was why I feared to ride with him in his auto. I thought he might disfigure me with vitrol or a blade. It is true that I went to his home and lived there while nursing his wife during an attack of influenza. While I was there he told his children to call me mamma," added Mrs. Lewis in her statement to the police.

She also told them that she had recently bought an automobile from the money which she inherited and that Mansolilli knew this.

The police say Mansolilli is a member of the A. L. A. The third bomb was concealed in an A. L. A. register.

Mansolilli in Trouble Often With State Board

Haverhill, July 18.—Matthew J. Fowler, chairman of the State Board of Optometry, said today Louis Mansolilli has been an applicant for a license to practice optometry in this State for many years, but had been repeatedly refused by the board by reason of his failure to pass the prescribed examination.

Mansolilli is now under arrest, charged with sending bombs to Mrs. Grace Lewis of Chelsea.

"We have had trouble with him for years," said Fowler. "We have convicted him of illegal practice in this State, but we have never been able to send him to jail.

"Four governors have approached the board in his behalf, McCall, Walsh, Coolidge and Cox, showing his ability to obtain influence in high places. All four governors, however, approved of our actions when shown his record."

CARDINAL DAUGHERTY GOES TO NORMANDY

New York, July 18.—Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia was on the liner Paris today bound for France, where he will officiate at the solemn triduum at Lisieux, Normandy, in honor of the beatification of Sister Theresa.

He is accompanied by Mgr. J. A. Whitaker, chancellor of the archdiocese of Philadelphia.

BOMB CASE POST CARD

"LOVE" MESSAGE SENT CHELSEA WIDOW

Police point out that street is abbreviated "str" both on this card and on the address on bomb package sent Mrs. Grace Lewis. Louis Mansolilli (inset) has submitted to arrest to fight the charge of sending the bomb.

$250,000 IN RUM LANDED IN HARBOR

slowly from Graves into President's Roads, off Long Island.

CUTS PRICES.

The rum ships have managed to communicate with runners ashore who start running even before the cargo vessel reaches Graves Light.

When the ship gets to Broad Sound most of the contraband has been run ashore and what little is left is smuggled in before the boat reaches anchorage in the Roads and Quarantine.

Recently virtually all the smugglers have put in at the Narrow Gauge Pier, Point Shirley, where the whiskey was hauled on the wharf and then loaded in big motor trucks.

The price has varied considerably the past two weeks. On one occasion White Horse Cellar Scotch was offered at $10 a case.

The runners today asked $50 for John Dewar and $55 for Haig and Haig when approached by cottagers wakened by the noise incident to the landing.

It was when there was talk of a real prohibition navy that the novel scheme of using the keel as a carrier was conceived by one of the leaders of the "fishermen gang."

SLOOP FIXED UP.

A sloop was purchased on the Cape and run into a cradle at high water. At low tide it was hauled out and the hooks welded to her fin. They are about two feet apart and run the length and breadth of the keel. A rope tackle is used to guide the bags to the hooks and a a somewhat simple scheme is employed to free the whiskey and haul it aboard.

Divers have gone over the side on several occasions to loosen bags that caught on the hooks and refused to come loose when the tackle was worked.

The added weight of the whiskey acts much the same as ballast and, according to one of the rum smugglers, does not hamper the boat to any great extent, although it is much more difficult to beat against the wind.

It is said the sloop, carrying thirty odd cases of Scotch on her keel ran ahead of a fair wind right into the Eastern Packet Pier, Atlantic avenue, within the past two weeks and there unloaded in the centre of the Italian fishing fleet.

WANTS TO WHIP MRS. DOANE

husband who found their little cottage in Gardner street, Salisbury, wholesome and satisfying and his two healthy babies objects of adoration.

Some day Frankie will be a big man.

Some day Lillian will be a woman.

Then some busybody will tell them the mother who bore them deserted them in an alley because she found life in a small town too slow.

And they might add, too, as busybodies are apt to, that three weeks before the same nineteen-year-old mother left them to their fate, her own mother went to a house with a red light before it, in Fair Haven, Conn., and brought her home.

TRAGIC BUT TRUE

As the soldiers sang coming home from the war, "How Ye Goin' to Keep 'em Down on the Farm After They've Seen Paree."

It's tragic but it's true.

Mrs. A. E. Sweet, great-grandmother of the children, who lives at No. 18 Cypress street, Brookline, vents her anger at her erring granddaughter. She is seventy-nine years old. Crippled with rheumatism, she ignored the sharp pains to tramp the living room floor of her home.

"I had never seen little Lillian," said Mrs. Sweet. "I worshipped little Francis. He was such a wonderful boy. I had planned to cook a few chickens and drive down to Salisbury for dinner with Vivian and the children next Sunday. It was to have been my first peep at little Lillian. I was looking forward to it. Now—" and she broke out weeping again.

IN EVIL HANDS.

"Vivian Doane, although she is my own granddaughter, has fallen in with evil women and evil ways," said Mrs. Sweet. "Ever since she lived in New Haven she has not been the same. In New Haven she met two women from the red light district. They got her in their grasp. Her mother went to New Haven and told her she would have her arrested if she did not come home. She came.

"She complained bitterly all the time about Salisbury being 'too slow.' She wanted the bright lights and said she could not stand life in Salisbury. I suppose she has gone right back to these terrible women in New Haven.

"Why she did not leave the children with their father is something I cannot understand. What did she want to leave them alone in an empty house for? For that she ought to be horsewhipped.

"If I could get my hands on her back, old and crippled as I am, I believe I would strangle her. She should be locked up in some strict institution for a couple of years. That might bring her to her senses.

"It is a peculiar thing, but Vivian was born on the same street where she left the children at No. 15. I guess she thought someone who formerly knew her would take them in."

WARRANTS FOR ARREST.

Chief of Police George Congdon of Salisbury, armed with warrants for the arrest of Mrs. Doane and Mrs. Dow, left Boston on an early train for New Haven, where they are believed to be in hiding with a male acquaintance of Mrs. Doane.

Mrs. Bertha Schofield from whose lodging house on Front street, Fairhaven, Ct., the Doane girl was rescued by her mother three weeks ago, was questioned today by Chief Congdon and detectives of the New Haven police.

ETHER BANDITS ROB COUPLE

windows were closed and the air was heavy with the sickly odor of ether.

"I got out of bed with difficulty. I opened the windows and then saw that the clothes I had worn the night before were gone. A quick survey showed me that burglars had come in and turned the house upside down.

"Mrs. Grossman was affected much the same way. She also had a headache, was drowsy and half sick and she, too, noted the smell of ether.

"I am a light sleeper. I woke during the night and heard the clock strike three. The next I knew it was well after 8 o'clock. I always get up at 6:30 in the morning without the aid of an alarm clock.

ENTER BY WINDOW.

The police of the Field's Corner station found no clews. The burglars had been careful not to leave a finger print behind.

The torn window screen furnished evidence of how they had got in the house, and that is the only fact the police have been able to establish outside of the robbery.

The odor of ether and the effects suffered by the Grossmans proved that they had been drugged, but there was nothing to show how the drug had been administered.

Ether has been employed by burglars in other cities, but as far as the police can recall, it has never been used in a robbery in this city heretofore.

The investigating officers hold the theory that the robbers had a stick with a sponge or cloth mat tied to the end which was soaked with the ether and then held under the nostrils of the sleepers.

Mr. Grossman is the president of the Massachusetts Envelope Company. He is widely known in Jewish circles by virtue of his position as vice-president of the State organization of the Independent Order of B'rith Abraham. He is a leader in Lazarus David Lodge of that society.

The Richest Men.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1923, by Star Company)

YOU HAVE READ about Magnus Johnson of Minnesota, here lately. Gentlemen that gamble in wheat obliged him by putting the price below a dollar just before the farmers went to vote. Dollar wheat on the ticker means eighty cents for the farmer. The new Senator left for his farm to finish the haying on election day, and it was real haying, with hayseed down the back of your neck, not haying with starched cuffs, as some Republican candidates do it for the photographers.

Magnus Johnson is neither a Beau Brummel nor an encyclopaedia of more or less useful knowledge. But he will vote against anything that doesn't seem good for the farmers. And that's what they want.

JOHN M. SIDDALL, able man, understanding well the average mind, has just died. For months he worked on, courageously, knowing that cancer had condemned him.

That he should have continued working, as his body slowly wasted and his strength failed, need surprise no one. Under such circumstances, what is there to do BUT work?

For that matter, every man works under sentence of death, although no doctor has said to him, "You have six months at the most." Work is the best opiate.

MRS. DRIGG'S HUSBAND had been out of work for months. She grew more and more discouraged as she went about her household work, while he went about the city looking for a job. Finally, when the husband, an accountant, came home, he found his problem simplified.

His wife had taken their two small daughters into a bedroom, killed them with gas, then cut her own throat and died.

That is one of the little tragedies of the "white collar" man.

There is no $14 a day bricklayer's job waiting for him, no great scarcity of labor among the "white collar" penpushers, and there are no unions among them, no "demagogues" to force the government to know that such men are actually alive. Mrs. Driggs has settled her problem, taking her two children with her. Men like her husband ought to know how to protect themselves—but they don't. They carry torches in prosperity parades and think they're superior.

AN ENGLISH NEWSPAPER, naming the ten richest men, puts Henry Ford first, with five hundred millions; John D. Rockefeller second, with four hundred and fifty million dollars. A better authority in New York city, head of one of the greatest industrial institutions, said "John D. Rockefeller is at least five times and probably ten times as rich as Ford."

The man quoted knows what he is talking about. He has borrowed many tens of millions from the Rockefeller fortune.

THE LONDON EDITOR puts Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, third among rich men, with one hundred and fifty million dollars. Mr. Mellon wouldn't thank you for that pittance. Multiply it by three.

The Duke of Westminster comes fourth in the English list. But there are men hidden away in New York and Chicago never heard of in England, and much richer than any English Duke. It should be understood that the Rockefeller fortune is no longer in one lump, a great part of it having been distributed among Rockefeller children.

SENATOR BROOKHART, back from Russia, says that nation "is the second most stable governm nt in the wo'l." Ours, presumably, is first. He also says that gigantic crops in Europe will ruin the farmers here, and he asks the President to call a special session of Congress to deal with that situation.

Meanwhile wheat yesterday dropped to a new low price, below ninety-six cents a bushel. When Brookhart of Iowa, Magnus Johnson of Minnesota, and La Follette of Wisconsin get together in the Senate, you will hear some emphatic oratory.

FAMOUS STAGE BEAUTY NOW 'BROKE'

"The Girl With the Pretty Back," aided by her beauty, quickly won her way to stage success, but injury to her pretty back robbed her of a footlight harvest when forced into idleness and, eventually, bankruptcy.

ACTRESS WITH 'PRETTY BACK' OWES $25,510

New York, July 18.—Lillian Lorraine, who rose to stardom on the stage particularly through the display of her beautiful back, has petitioned the court to declare her a bankrupt.

The turn in Miss Lorraine's career came when she broke her back in an accident. Her injury kept her idle for months, during which she was forced to dispose of jewels said to be worth from $75,000 to $100,000.

Miss Lorraine gave her assets as nothing and her liabilities as $25,510.

MANIAC BRANDS AND SLAYS BOY

Actress Leads Kidnapers in Battle

R. I. MANIAC HUNTED AS SLAYER

Branded and Hacked Body of Boy Victim Found in Pond

Providence, R. I., July 18.—An army of detectives today scoured the outskirts of Providence for a madman believed to have been author of the most atrocious crime ever committed in the State of Rhode Island.

He is believed to have strapped seven-year-old Vincenzo Soscia of Thornton into a chair, carved the initials "A" and "E" also "C" or "G" into his left cheek with a razor, cut his hair in weird, crazy fashion, with the keen-edged weapon then hacked him to death.

BOYS FIND BODY.

The body floated to the surface of Randall Pond, Knightsville, when three boys churned the placid waters in a bathing frolic. Sick with fright, they ran for police.

Young Soscia had been missing from home since Monday. He was the stepson of Antonio Picano of Tabor street, Thornton.

Missing from the State Hospital for the Insane is Frank Weeden, a murderous lunatic. Armed police seek him ready to shoot on sight if necessary.

Weeden attempted to kill his cousin Miss Daisy Coulters and was committed to the asylum in 1897. Since then he has made frequent escapes.

The boy's body was found about seventy-five feet from the shore. It had been tossed in after death, medical examiners agree.

After an examination performed today, Medical Examiner Daniel S. Latham of Cranston declared that the boy had died as the result of shock and hemorrhage from multiple incised wounds about his head and face and contused lacerated wounds on the right side of his face.

The cuts, apparently made with a razor or some other sharp instrument, were on the left side of the face and showed evidences of having bled profusely. The right side of the face was badly crushed in and Dr. Latham believes that this may have been done with a rock or some blunt instrument.

SLAIN MONDAY.

The boy had been slashed about the back and hands, some of these wounds apparently having been inflicted while he was alive and some after death. On his left cheek were cut the initials A and E and a third letter which appeared to be either C or G. The back of the left hand showed ragged gashes, similar to those that might have been made by barbed wire, at the base of all four fingers and thumb. There were also five deep slashes across the back of this hand which completely severed two tendons.

The body, Dr. Latham declared, had been in the water since late Monday night or early Tuesday morning.

The boy's hair had been closely cropped, apparently within a day or two of the finding of the body.

At the Soscia home on Tabor street, Lieut. Debow found two young women who claimed to have heard a young boy in Knightsville describe the slaying of little Vincenzo. They were unable, they said, to give the boy's name and doubted whether they would be able to identify him again.

ONE OF THREE SONS.

Vincenzo was one of three sons of Mrs. Soscia. Her husband died about a year ago and recently she remarried. Her second husband, Antonio Picano, works on the Colvin farm on Apple House Hill. He left the house Monday morning shortly after

Hub Has Legless Swimmer

HALL BRENNAN.

Swimmers in the pool at Luna Park, Coney Island, had a surprise when Hall Brennan, a Dorchester boy with no legs came to the edge of the water and rolled in. But the real sensation came when he clambered up to the high diving board of the Aquasrome and took a dive into nine feet of water, swimming out like a fish. Brennan lost his legs in an accident, but in spite of his handicap has not lost his ardor for swimming. Here he is about to take a dive.

5 o'clock and did not return until 8 in the evening.

The absence of Vincenzo through the entire day was reported to him, but he told the police last night he thought the boy would come home when he got hungry. At 9:30 o'clock when the boy still remained away the step-father visited neighbors' homes in search for him. When it neared midnight without result, the police were communicated with.

Chief of Police James E. Cuff described the crime as the worst that has occurred during his connection with the police department.

ESCAPES IN AUTO WITH CHILD

Helps Three Millionaires to Win Free-for-All Fight in Connecticut

Darien, Ct., July 18.—Miss Dorothy Manners, Broadway actress, proved to her friends that she can fight as well as act when she led a party of three New York millionaires to the home of Mrs. E. M. Kiernan and kidnaped five-year-old Carlo Sanmartin. The child, the police allege, is the son of the actress.

A free-for-all battle, in which Miss Manners is said to have played a leading role, preceded the kidnaping. After the battle, Miss Manners and her three friends jumped into an automobile and sped away towards Greenwich in a cloud of dust.

The sensational kidnaping followed an attempt by Mrs. Sarah Murray, wealthy New York woman, to adopt the Sanmartin boy. Mrs. Murray started proceedings in the Darien court for the adoption of the boy. Miss Manners opposed the proceedings and was to appear in court here next Saturday to show why she, Miss Manners, should be given custody of the child instead of Mrs. Murray. Sensations were looked for at the court hearing.

Mrs. Murray left for Europe a few days ago after completion of arrangements to postpone the hearing until her return. She placed the child meanwhile in the care of Mrs. Kiernan.

The Kiernan family was at dinner when the door burst open and in rushed the three millionaires, headed by Miss Manners. Mr. and Mrs. Kiernan, with a son and daughter and guests, jumped up from the table on their entrance and attempted to hide the child.

Miss Manners made a wild swing at Kiernan who blocked her way, and the millionaires, taking their cue from Miss Manners, rush d into the fray. A free-for-all followed in which all members of both parties are said to have taken an active part.

Finally Miss Manners emerged from the mixup with the little boy in her arms. Kicking and biting her way through the mass of fighters she dashed through the door.

The millionaires formed a rear guard and in a minute all were in the auto and were speeding away.

In the car, according to the police, was Percy W. Hodgson of New York, son-in-law of W. W. Wright of New York, who summers at Norwalk. Grand Juror Shaughnessy of Darien went to the Houston home and questioned Houston after the escapade.

BELIEVE FRANCE WILL YIELD TO BRITISH VIEW

London, July 18 (AP).—Some observers here think there is a change in the French attitude toward the note Great Britain is to propose as a joint allied reply to Germany that indicates an increased willingness of France to consider the British draft when submitted.

The diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says:

"The change may be purely atmospheric and tactical. On the other hand it conceivably may be the outcome of considerations urged by Belgium which is working for conciliation, or by friends of the Entente, like Premier Benes of Czecho-Slovakia."

He adds that, in any case, "the change is welcomed here as containing some promise that the British proposals will be examined in a friendly and relatively dispassionate spirit."

MRS. MAYO SUES 2ND HUSBAND

Blue-Eyed Blonde and Her "Husband Habit" Are Again in Court

New York, July 18.—Charlotte Cheatham Mayo, most of whose life is a secret behind blue eyes and pale, blonde curls, today suffers her "husband habit" to be dragged into court again.

Only Monday she lost one mate through his voluntary separation through legal methods.

And if Roy Mayo, husband No.—let's see. Joseph Archuitta was No. 1 and Butch Kretchmar was No. 3 and that must make Roy Mayo No 2—if Mayo has his way he'll obtain a divorce today.

PLANS COUNTER SUIT.

Charlotte, of course, is the plaintiff in the suit.

She started the action fourteen days after she was wed March 20 at Portchester to Butch Kretchmar, last scion of a wealthy New York family.

Mayo announced he would file a counter-suit against Mrs. Mayo in court today and charge she was guilty of misconduct as his wife from the time she married Kretchmar until Kretchmar obtained an annulment of the ceremony July 16.

Whether Charlotte would be in court to defend herself from her husband's charges could not be learned. Possibly she'll be quite content to let his decision go against her by default.

FIRST MARRIED AT 14.

In that case there is no promise of further revelations of the past life of the pretty blonde who has found men East, West and South equally easy of conquest. All that is known now is that she got an early start in the husband business, marrying Joseph Archuitta in Memphis, Tenn., when she was fourteen or sixteen years old.

He obtained a divorce. Mayo became No. 2 in Boulder, Colo., believe, it is charged, his charming love cavalry had never been married. After marrying Kretchmar last May, Charlotte hurried into court and quietly sought a separation from Mayo, but some of Kretchmar's friends learned her game and told.

Now she's glad it is all coming to an end. She has a new husband picked out.

FIGHT FIRE AT ERIE TERMINAL

Jersey City, N. J., July 18.—The Erie Railroad terminal freight office was destroyed by fire today.

All Fire Department units of the city were called out in an effort to save the railroad's huge grain elevator and terminal roundhouse, to which the flames spread.

The fire broke out at 5 a.m. in the office terminal, a two-and-a-half story structure covering a block at Pavonia and Kelso streets, just as the 600 employes began to arrive for duty.

In an hour the building was demolished while towering flames and firing embers had communicated the blaze to the nearby roundhouse and terminal grain elevator.

Six companies of apparatus battled with the fire. They were handicapped by low water pressure, and hundreds of volunteer railroad workers were summoned to their aid.

DISCLOSES MONKEY GLAND COLONY IN WILDS OF DARKEST AFRICA

SIMIAN S BRED TO AID HUMANITY

Dr. Voronoff Tells Congress of Surgeons of Immense Park Sponsored by Pasteur

London, July 18 (A.P.).—The hope that those in search of the Fountain of Youth will find it in an African monkey colony is expressed by Dr. Serge Voronoff, director of the experimental laboratory of the College of France, known for a decade for his work with gland transplantation.

He told nearly a thousand eminent physicians and surgeons from all over the world attending the sixth triennial congress of the International Surgical Society how the Pasteur Institute has constructed an immense park in Africa where it will breed chimpanzees, whose glands, he asserts, are valuable in rejuvenating humans.

He said that while African apes were so difficult to obtain, grafting operations necessarily would have to be limited, but he believed that the colony would place the elixir of youth within the reach of everyone.

The conference also discussed the notable strides made last year toward conquering tuberculosis, diabetes, pneumonia, paralysis, rheumatism and even insanity, but in spite of all these remarkable advances Sir William Macewan, president of the congress, remarked regretfully, "Regarding nature as a whole we are still in the deepest darkness."

Noted surgeons also noted improved methods for alleviating human suffering by bone and skin grafting, reducing mortality and cheapening and making more effective operations of all sorts.

JOHNSON WILL SEEK THE SIX-YEAR TERM

St. Paul, Minn., July 18.—Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Laborite, elected senator by a plurality of more than 80,000 will be a candidate for re-election next year, according to his supporters.

His friends declare it "a natural conclusion" to assume that he will seek the six-year term, and the usual speculation began cropping out today as to his likely opponent in the Republican ranks.

ONE HAPPY DAY FOR KIDDIES AT NANTASKET BEACH

ICE CREAM AND MILK FEAST

One little guest of the Boston American's free outing at Nantasket enjoying the cool milk and ice cream provided in huge quantities gratis by the H. P. Hood & Sons Company, and above, five joyous youngsters revelling in lollypops donated by the Moxie Company.

3,000 Little Ones and Their Mothers Given a Joyous Outing By the Boston American

Three thousand happy children and their mothers are telling friends today what a wonderful outing they had at Nantasket Beach as guests of the Boston American.

To say these kiddies had the time of their lives is putting it mildly. They practically owned the entire beach while there.

The youngsters sailed from Rowe's Wharf on the Steamboats Myles Standish and Mary Chilton and returned from the beach on the same fine boats, General Manager Frederick Lane of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company personally supervised the transportation of the children and their mothers, aided by several capable assistants, with the result that not an accident occurred.

NURSES AID.

Four local Red Cross nurses sailed on the steamers and attended to the needs of all, washing sand from the eyes of little boys and girls who couldn't seem to get enough and returning lost kiddies to their parents.

These nurses were Mrs. Anna R. Rosa, secretary of Suffolk County Division, Miss Vertie French, Miss Rowena Fuller and Miss Mary Creed. Mrs. Mary Appel of Roxbury also assisted in a similar capacity.

After arriving at the beach each child and mother or guardian was given a bottle of H. P. Hood & Sons' pasteurized milk with straws and a large carton of "Sweetheart" ice cream made by the same firm. They also received 4,500 portions of Berwick cake, each piece nicely wrapped in sanitary paper, from Berwick Cake Company.

MOXIE LOLLYPOPS.

In addition, each person was presented a lollypop by representatives of The Moxie Company. The kiddies had a wonderful time "paddling in the water." Through courtesy of the management of Sagamore Bath Houses, mothers were given free use of lockers for parking the children' clothing.

And what fun the youngsters had at Paragon Park! When Manager Albert A. Golden saw the children trooping through the gates, free of charge as he had arranged, he gathered a large group of them together and treated them to ice cream and cake in the splendid restaurant of the park.

John Solari, manager of the "Flying Machines" at Paragon Park, gave many of the youngsters rides free. "I was a kid once myself," said Mr. Solari, "and I know what it is to be without money. I've never turned down a kid yet that was broke. We're all going to be a long time dead."

TREATED LIKE PRINCES.

It was the same story all along the line. Every man and woman earning a living at the beach seemed to renew their youth by contact with the Boston American kiddies and treated them like princes.

Three steamboats will take the youngsters on next Tuesday's Boston American outing to Nantasket. Through the kindness of General Manager Lane of the steamship company another has been added to the fleet to accommodate the party. That means that 4,500 mothers and children will be accommodated. It also means that we will be able to send more tickets for exchange to the list of stations.

No list of stations is published today. Don't depend upon old lists. A new list will be printed within a day or two. Watch for it and then hurry around for your tickets.

EXAMINE YOUR TICKETS.

Examine them carefully. See that each ticket issued for your party reads for the same boat. None will be exchanged at Rowe's wharf.

Last week tickets were issued to the stations on Thursday. They were all taken up by Saturday. It is expected that, even with the number increased by 1,500 they will last no longer this week.

Again, we repeat, for every return trip ticket you must present three coupons clipped from Page 2 of the American of three separate dates. This applies as much to the child in arms as to the oldest woman guest.

Beauty Doctors Must Cover Arms and Quit Powdering

Jersey City, N. J., July 18.—Not even a smile wreathed the face of any of the Jersey City Commissioners when they passed on first reading an ordinance that provides that manicurists and beauty parlor specialists must cover their arms with full length sleeves, discard their use of the powder puff and wear regulation uniforms, in addition to paying $25 as a license fee to do business each year.

These regulations are only a few of those embodied in the ordinance.

40 BROOKLINE HOMES ROBBED OF $50,000

Fear grips the exclusive apartment house districts of Brookline, because of more than forty burglaries in the last month.

It has been estimated that the value of the stolen property exceeds $50,000.

The majority of the robberies have been made in the Longwood, Coolidge Corner, and Beacon street sections in homes where residents were away for the Summer.

These burglaries have attained such proportions that Chief of Police Rutherford has assigned four uniformed members of the force to assist the Criminal Investigation Bureau in thwarting future robberies and in arresting the burglars now at large.

Inasmuch as most of the robberies have occurred in homes where the occupants were away, the thefts were not discovered until some time after they had been committed, thus insuring the thieves opportunity for a safe get-away.

As a result, the police have but a meagre description of the robbers. That the band is one of expert burglars the police are certain, for the operations are on such a scale as to prove that the perpetrators are not amateurs.

ARAB KING INSISTS HE RULE PALESTINE

Jerusalem, July 18 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency). — The executive committee of the Moslem-Christian Union announces receipt of a letter from King Hussein of the Hedjas declaring he will not sign the British-Arab protocol unless Great Britain agrees to nullify the Balfour declaration which pledged Great Britain to facilitate establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people. The letter concludes with an appeal to the Arabs to have patience and confidence in him.

Texas Chief "Will Take Care of" All I. W. W. Visitors

Port Arthur, Tex., July 18.—"Let 'em come, we'll take care of them," said Police Chief W. Covington when he heard that foot-loose I. W. W.'s were ordered to Port Arthur from Los Angeles.

"No I. W. W. has been slain here that I know of," said the chief, "and while I don't believe they are coming, we'll take care of them the best way we know how.

"There are many chores to be done in Port Arthur and I guess the I. W. W. can be made to do them."

She was taken to the Brockton Hospital in the police ambulance, where it was found that her condition was not serious.

'L' SPIRAL STAIRS DECLARED MENACE

To consider plans for removal of the spiral staircase to the elevated structure in Eglseton Square, the Jamaica Plain Civic Association will hold a special meeting Thursday night at Boylston Hall, No. 276 Amory street.

Residents of the district say the island in the heart of the square is a menace to human life.

AGED AUTHOR IS SAVED FROM POORHOUSE

Piqua, O., July 18.—Thomas C. Harbaugh, 74-year-old poet and author of more than 150 volumes of detective and Indian stories and once reputed to have been worth $50,000, has been saved from the poor house.

Mr. Harbaugh was to have gone to the Miami County Infirmary at Troy, near here, where he was destined to spend the remained of his days, this week. Instead, through the efforts of the editor of a Middleton, (Md.) newspaper, a friend of the author, he will become an inmate of the Middleton hospital.

Due to his poor health, which was aggravated by a recent paralytic stroke, the friend believed the hospital would be a better place for Mr. Harbaugh.

The aged author will remain in the one furnished room of the Harbaugh homestead at Clestown until next month, when friends will take him to Maryland. All the other rooms are bare, his curios, relics and furniture having been disposed of a few days ago at public auction. They netted him approximately $400.

MAUGHAN PLANS TO HOP OFF TOMORROW

WOMEN BRUTALLY FLOGGED WITH STRAP BY KU KLUX KLAN

CLUB DOWN YOUTHFUL DEFENDER

Southern Police Chief Among Trio on Trial for Outrage

By Universal Service.

Lumberton, N. C., July 18.—How eighteen members of a hooded band of men, who declared they were members of the Ku Klux Klan, unmercifully beat two women and clubbed down the sixteen-year-old son of one of them, who came to their defence, was told on the witness stand here by Mrs. Hattie A. Purvis, thirty-four.

Mrs. Purvis, principal witness in the trial of three alleged members of the Ku Klux Klan for the outrages, herself was thrown across a log and flogged with a leather strap a quarter of an inch thick and as broad as a human hand.

Mrs. Mary A. Watson, was more brutally beaten than Mrs. Purvis, the cruel strap wielded by the men drawing blood and lacerating the flesh.

POLICE CHIEF ACCUSED.

The three men on trial are: Michael Lawson, Chief of Police of Fairmont, Julius Brogden, and Joe Hedgepeth of Proctorville. They were represented in court by nine attorneys, the latter also appearing for H. L. Taliaferro, a Klansman detective, who was arrested on a bench warrant charging intimidation of witnesses in the case.

Despite the efforts of the nine attorneys to shake Mrs. Purvis in her graphically told story her testimony withstood the attacks, and so impressed a civil war veteran in the courtroom, who has been a member of the Klan in reconstruction days, that he wiped away tears as the horror tale was unfolded.

18 HOODED MEN.

Mrs. Purvis told how on April 14, eighteen hooded men appeared at her home, knocked on the door and, when denied admittance, forced an entrance. They kidnaped her and Mrs. Watson, bundled them in an automobile and drove to a lonely negro church yard.

When Mrs. Watson, too feeble to scream longer, fainted, Mrs. Purvis testified the leader of the band said: "Is that enough." The hooded men agreed and the leader, alleged to have been Michael Lawson, called out, "Now for the next one."

It was then that Mrs. Purvis was thrown across the log and beaten severely. She swore that the three men on trial were members of the hooded party.

BEATEN WITH PISTOL.

The hooded band at the time of the kidnaping at the Purvis home struck Mrs. Watson with the butt of a pistol when she made an effort to escape. Mrs. Purvis said her own three children were beaten back into the house with police clubs.

A sixteen-year-old son of Mrs. Purvis testified in corroboration of his mother's story.

The defence have numerous witnesses to testify, according to defence attorneys, that the women bore "bad" reputations.

Torn from Mate

MRS. CAMILLA ALTOMARE
FRANK ALTOMARE

ELOPING BRIDE ARRESTED ON RETURN HOME

Camilla Sitcawitch Altomare, sixteen years old, of No. 8 Acton street, South End, was torn from the side of her husband, Frank Altomare, seventeen years old, and arrested, when she returned home from her wedding trip.

Mrs. Camilla Sitcawitch, mother of the bride, complained to the police that the marriage was illegal in that the couple had given false ages, and asked that a warrant for her eloping daughter's arrest be sworn.

Upon their return to Boston after their honeymoon, Mrs. Sitcawitch took her daughter away from Altomare and refused to let them live together. But the couple undaunted, again ran away, this time to New Jersey, where he obtained a position. Informed by a telegram from his sister that everything was patched up, Altomare and his bride returned to Boston. It was then that Mrs. Altomare was arrested.

"I love Camilla and Camilla loves me. I want to provide a home for her," the youth declared to a Boston American reporter. He declared his mother-in-law had given her consent to the marriage, only to have her daughter return, and then changed her mind. Her only objection, he claims, is that he is an Italian and she is Polish.

VANDERBILT TO SUMMER ON NORTH SHORE

New York, July 18.—Harold Vanderbilt, known to his intimates as "Mike," is one of the foremost matrimonial prizes in America, and he is, undoubtedly, the "catch" of the entire Vanderbilt clan.

"Mike's" decision, therefore, to again eschew Newport in favor of the North Shore of Massachusetts has caused more than one aspiring mamma to shed calamitous tears and hurriedly send to Boston for a list of available villas at Manchester, Magnolia, Eastern Point, Pride's Crossing, etc.

Harold Vanderbilt

For several years, in fact ever since he was graduated with honors from Harvard University back in 1907, the youngest son of the late William K. Vanderbilt, Sr., and his wife, now Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, has been the target for matchmaking mothers, and on various occasions his betrothal to this or that young woman has been rumored.

The report linking his name with that of "Eleo" Sears is moss-covered, and those who know their Newport recall the summer when everyone predicted "Mike" would become Mrs. George Howard's son-in-law.

However Margaret Perin, Mrs. Howard's daughter, married Francis I. Amory, a brother of "Charlie" Amory—and "Mike" has continued to enjoy bachelor days.

"Mike" has always had a genuine dislike of the Rhode Island spa. Even back in the days when his father was alive and he, together with his brother "Willie" K. 2d, was ensconced at "Marble House," while Mrs. Belmont resided a bit further down on Bellevue avenue, at "Belcourt" (occupied this summer by the "Jimmie" Gerards) "Mike" steadfastly refused to join the Newport gayety and made protracted visits with Boston friends at the Massachusetts resorts.

At Pride's Crossing Mr. Vanderbilt will again have the Caswell estate, a charming place situated on a point that juts out into the sea, and he will, of course, entertain groups of his friends at the villa and on board his trim yacht, "Vagrant."

REVOKES CHARTER OF N. S. MINE UNION

Atlantic City, N. J., July 18.—Declaring that the United Mine Workers of America is not a political institution and "cannot be used to down the established institutions of this government," John L. Lewis, president of that organization, revoked the charter of District No. 24, embracing the Nova Scotia bituminous fields, and established a provisional district organization to function in that field, under the direct authority of the international union.

PHONE STRIKE IS NEARING THE END

hold law and order," Cheney declared it is "too hazardous" to continue to have strikebreakers to come to the exchange at night.

This move was prompted by the demonstration before the telephone company building last night when more than 1,000 persons jeered strikebreakers when they were escorted from the exchange to waiting automobiles.

Manager Cheney, apparently acting on instruction from President Matt B. Jones at Boston, said today:

"The disgraceful demonstrations when the police refused to disperse a howling mob, making it extremely hazardous to conduct our employes from the building in safety, clearly indicates that the police have no intention to furnishing the protection to which we are entitled in conducting a necessary public utility.

"How long do you figure this emergency service will continue?"

"It will last until the police here do their duty and uphold law and order, which they are not doing now."

Police Disperse Crowd at Providence Exchange

Providence, R. I., July 18.—More than half a hundred patrolmen, detectives and police officials were required to disperse a crowd of several hundred persons, who gathered when 60 striking telephone operators attempted mass picketing in front of the Union Exchange Building.

The police, acting under orders of Supt. O'Neil, forced the operators, who were marching back and forth in a large semi-circle at the entrance to the exchange, away from the telephone building.

After being dispersed the strikers visited the Olneyville section, where they adopted the same tactics at West Exchange. Later they visited the Broad Exchange, in the Elmwood section, where they were again dispersed. No arrests were made.

Banana Lament Fails to Stop Fine on License

"No, we got some bananas," said Mose Karagelnick as he pushed a handcart full of the yellow fruit up the pain down Blackstone street.

"Show me your license," said the cop on the beat.

"Yes, we have no licenses," replied Mose.

To Judge Murray Mose said: "You see, Your Honor, everybody say yes, we have no bananas, and no, I have plenty bananas, and business is business."

"Five dollars," said the Court.

DUSE, SEEKING LOST FORTUNE, TO TOUR U. S.

New York, July 18.—Trying to recoup the fortune she lost during the war, Eleanora Duse, the "Italian Bernhardt," who recently made a post-bellum debut in London, will return to the stage in this country in October for a 30-week engagement.

The noted tragedienne, now sixty-four years old, probably will appear in several of the Italian plays which are eliciting such a furor in London.

Madame Duse was born on the covered wagon of a barn-storming troupe near Venice, the daughter of Italian stage folk. At twenty-four she was Bernhardt's most pretentious rival. She and Gabrielle D'Annunzio once were partner-producers. She made triumphant tours of America in 1892, 1896 and 1902.

She had retired from the stage when the world war broke out.

DOCK STRIKERS TIE UP LINERS AT LIVERPOOL

Liverpool, July 18 (AP).—The loading of Atlantic liners here has been stopped in consequence of a serious extension of the dockers' strike. Several thousand men quit work after a demonstration by strikers at Birkenhead, across the Mersey. All coastal and cross-Channel service also has been stopped.

London, July 18 (AP).—Expectations that the unofficial dock strike which began in Hull July 2 would end when it was called off formally in London July 11 have been unfulfilled, and within the last 24 hours the situation has grown worse.

The strikers continue to ignore the leaders of their union, and are intimidating many of the older men who are reported eager to return to work. But who fear violence from the younger strikers. The dock workers, as well as transport workers in other branches cooperating with them, caused some rioting which, though not on a big scale, has been enough to compel interference by the police.

Only last night the police broke up a gang that kept the dock neighborhood in ferment for several hours.

Employers have notified the strikers that unless they return to work today, outside labor will be brought in. The strikers' reply to this ultimatum has been to make things hot. The outlook is decidedly disquieting.

EIGHT ARRESTED AS LOOTERS OF SCITUATE AUTO TIRE SHOP

Eight men in a small auto were arrested by Traffic Officers Michael Conley of Quincy and John Fitts of Weymouth at Fore River bridge today, following the looting of an auto accessory shop near Egypt station, Scituate. Booked on charges of breaking and entering, larceny and drunkenness, they gave their names: James A. McFarlane, No. 612 East Third street, South Boston; Humphrey A. and Leo J. Kearny, brothers, No. 12 Acadia street, Dorchester; Arthur LeMay, No. 250 K street; Michael Foley, No. 282 Broadway; Howard Nagle, No. 612 Dorchester avenue, and Joseph Joyce, No. 243 Dorchester street, all of South Boston, and John F. Sullivan, Philadelphia.

Joyce was one of the men arrested recently for stealing seventeen suits of clothes from a Quincy tailor and was out on bail.

The Egypt store was entered about 4 a. m. today and $100 worth of tires and accessories stolen.

LAFOLLETTE SEES BLOW TO MONOPOLY IN MINNESOTA ELECTION

JOHNSON 'ON SIDE OF PEOPLE'

Predicts Issue Will Sweep Whole Country Within Very Few Months

By ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE, United States Senator for Wisconsin. (Written for Universal Service.)

Madison, Wis., July 18.—The people of the great Northwest have again spoken their convictions that if representative government is to survive in the United States private monopoly must be driven out of control of their government.

The notion with which the reactionaries comfort themselves that the election of Magnus Johnson expressed merely a sectional protest of disgruntled farmers and working men against the present economic conditions and governmental policies, is a ridiculous delusion.

VOICE OF PEOPLE.

The voice of Minnesota is the voice of the common people of this country constituting 90 per cent. of the population, who are determined to free themselves from the monopoly power over their lives which has been built up over a long period of years through favors for the few extorted from the government of many.

The old Lincoln spirit is again sweeping the West. It will find its echo in the East, the South and the Middle West, just as soon as courageous and able leaders on the type of Magnus Johnson arise to champion the cause of the common people.

Partisan politicians and their press can not long deceive themselves concerning the fundamental movement among the people. The people are awake. The old party slogans do not deceive them. They are not to be misled by the ridicule and abuse which has been directed at their leaders. They have learned to know the real enemies of their political and economic liberty. In Minnesota Monday they fired a shot which will be heard in every section of the country.

BORN IN POVERTY.

The election of a man of the character of Magnus Johnson is highly significant. Born in poverty, educated in his early manhood through the labor of his own hands, Senator-elect Johnson was the target in the campaign of the cruel forces of ridicule which cartooned Abraham Lincoln as a baboon and character-ized him as an illiterate dam-ogue.

Governor Preus had the support of all the reactionary forces, not merely in Minnesota, but also of the nation. It was well known that if elected he would have followed reactionary leadership in the Senate and enlisted in the service of organized monopoly, which was supporting him.

TOOK PEOPLE'S SIDE.

Magnus Johnson took the people's side in this struggle. I am confident that he will demonstrate the same high courage, ability and steadfastness in the public service which he exhibited in the campaign just closed. He will make a great Senator for the people. His victory places Minnesota in the vanguard of the progressive line of march with two staunch progressives in the United States Senate.

The mass of the people of Minnesota have been suffering from the same evils which have oppressed the people generally throughout the country. They have demanded that the monopoly power which dictates the prices the people must pay for every necessity of life and compels the producer to sell his products below the cost of production, must be destroyed.

So long ago as 1912, a President of the United States was elected upon the single pledge that he would free the country from this menace. He abandoned the issue in the second year of his first term.

DOMINANT ISSUE.

Emancipation of the American people from the monopoly control is still the dominant issue. It will be the one paramount issue until the people are freed from that control.

The power which has been built up in defiance of law and with the active aid of the government at Washington, is doomed when a majority of the people, as in Minnesota, take back the control of their own government.

I firmly believe that the principles which have won the support of the Northwest will ultimately obtain the same overwhelming approval in every section of the country, where the issue is slendacally the same. That approval may come within a year, or it may be delayed for a sort time, in my belief.

'MISS NEWPORT'

Newport, R. I., July 18—Miss Dorothy Malzacher, who won the "Miss Newport" honors by receiving the largest number of coupon votes in the American Legion contest, will be crowned Queen of the Legion Carnival this evening by Mayor Mortimer A. Sullivan. Miss Malzacher received 4,997,800 while her nearest competitor, Miss Pauline Houghton, received 4,650,000 votes.

CANADA LABOR CHIEF SCORES STRIKERS

Ottawa, July 18.—Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, issued a statement today urging Cape Breton miners to "remain loyal to their international union by giving full support to the new provisional president, Silby Barrett, and thus frustrate the efforts of J. B. MacLachlan and his colleagues to destroy the solidarity of their organization."

"Their ill-advised strike," he said, "has been of no value to the steel workers in their struggle for the establishment of proper conditions. On the contrary, it has helped to confuse the minds of the public as to the real issue and retard the efforts being made by organized labor to have the militia removed from the Nova Scotia strike area."

Arlington Elks Outing

The annual stag outing of the Arlington Lodge of Elks was held today, with an automobile trip to Ferncroft, where dinner was served.

HARDING, FED UP ON CAN MEAT, LONGS FOR FISH

Seward, Alaska, July 18 (I.N.S.).—Back on the transport Henderson from his interior trip, President Harding planned to rest and may do some fishing during the day, the opportunity being afforded by the day's enforced layover in Seward in order to allow Secretary Hoover to catch up from Anchorage, where he has been listening to Alaska's grievances concerning departmental administration.

The members of the Presidential party are strong for the fishing trip, jocularly suggesting that it was his only hope of getting a fish dinner. Alaska is probably the greatest fish and game territory existant, yet in his ramblings here he has yet to be banqueted on fish and game. Instead the Alaskans have been entertaining themselves to provide the Presidential table with things from the "outside" which are luxuries to them.

The Hardings have eaten more canned stuff in the past two weeks than in the previous six months.

The President, Mrs. Harding and all members of the party were glad to return to the comparative luxury of the naval transport after their trip into the interior. Traveling in Alaska, even on the government's railroad, is no pleasure jaunt despite the fact that the road boasts three Pullmans and one diner which function occasionally.

The "Alaskan flyer" averages 15 miles an hour.

President Harding upon learning of the defeat of Gov. J. A. O. Preus in the Minnesota senatorial election, declined formal comment, although he evidently was keenly disappointed. He considers the Minnesota campaign largely fought on local issues and the Minnesota Republicans chiefly to blame for their own defeat.

SUSPENDED BEVERLY COP BLAMES CHIEF

Beverly, July 18.—Patrolman Edward F. Glidden was suspended today by Mayor George H. Whittemore on the recommendation of

Mayor Whittemore Chief Hayes

Chief John E. Hayes, who alleges that the officer absented himself from his seat on at least two occasions. A hearing will be held tonight.

There seems to be considerable mystery as to just what the patrolman is alleged to have done. It is said by some of his brother cops that he went away in his automobile one night while he was supposed to be pacing his beat.

Glidden claimed today that Chief Hayes has been angry with him for many weeks and has been trying to "get him." He says that he is the victim of a "frame up."

MOTHER AND BABY INJURED IN CRASH

Mrs. Mary T. Hacham, 28 years old, of No. 829 Massachusetts avenue, and her 21-months-old daughter, Gertrude, were slightly injured when the automobile truck in which they were riding collided with a touring car at the corner of Massachusetts and Commonwealth avenues. The touring car was operated by Miss Lucy Goshearian, of No. 263 Brookline street, Cambridge. The truck was driven by Willis E. Hacham, husband of the injured woman.

PLANS 3 PER CENT BEER BILL FOR THIS COMING CONGRESS

St. Louis, July 18.—A resolution amending the Volstead act to permit beer of 3 per cent. alcoholic content will be introduced at the next session of Congress by Representative L. C. Dyer of St. Louis, he announced today. Dyer said a recent tour of the Western Middle and New England States had convinced him that sentiment is overwhelmingly for modification of the prohibition law.

He added that business men, temperance workers and church societies are convinced that modification is needed.

CHARLOTTE, "MAD EMPRESS," DYING IN HER 83D YEAR

Brussels, July 18 (I.N.S.)—Former Empress Charlotte, widow of Emperor Maximilian, and aunt of King Albert of Belgium, was reported today to be dying at her chateau near Bouchout.

Charlotte is 83 years old and has been insane since the assassination of her husband in 1867. She is known as "The Mad Empress of Mexico."

She suffered from hallucinations in recent years that she was at Mexico City in control of the Mexican nation.

LABORITES HOLD COMMONS IN SESSION ALL NIGHT

London, July 18 (I.N.S.)—The House of Commons adjourned after an all-night session, due to a labor filibuster over domestic bills. There was some disorder. Government supporters were afraid to leave their seats for fear the Laborites would slip over some anti-government measure.

RAID 5 GAMBLING HOUSES AT NEW JERSEY RESORTS

Long Branch, N. J., July 18.—Detectives today swooped down on five alleged gambling casinos in Pleasure Bay, West End, Allenhurst and Wanamassa and seized gambling paraphernalia valued at $20,000. The proprietors of the five resorts were arrested. Guests were not molested.

The raid followed seizures yesterday of $300,000 worth of liquor at the fashionable resorts of Lakewood and Point Pleasant.

The biggest place raided was known as the New York Club. The raiders surprised 30 men and women in evening dress gambling.

At Pleasure Bay the raiders entered a road house noted for its shore dinners, in the rear of which a gambling house was alleged to have been found.

WOMAN FEUDIST SEEKS LIFE OF AUNT; LATTER IS DYING

Springfield, Mo., July 18.—Two women have written the latest chapter in the feud in a remote region of southeastern Douglas County between the Hicks and Hancock families.

Bertha Hancock, twenty-year-old school teacher, is in jail at Ava on the charge of shooting her aunt, Mrs. John Hicks, with intent to kill. The latter is near death.

"You'll have to eat those words," the Hancock girl is said to have uttered as she is alleged to have fired a shotgun which tore the left arm from her aunt.

The Hancock girl said her aunt had been slurring her character.

ALABAMA REFUSES TO MODIFY CONVICT LABOR

Montgomery, Ala., July 18 (I.N.S.)—Efforts of prison reform advocates to abolish the Alabama convict labor system seemed destined to failure today, with two of the measures to that end side-tracked and a bill providing for the end of the system in three years defeated in the Senate.

By a vote of 20 to 13, the Senate passed a resolution making the sense of Legislature that no change be made in the present system. The resolution had been passed in the lower house by a large majority.

DOG'S BARK SAVES FAMILIES IN NEIGHBORHOOD FEUD FIRE

New York, July 18 (I.N.S.)—A barking dog probably saved the lives of four families from a fire in Brooklyn, believed by police to have been the result of a neighborhood quarrel of long standing.

Miss Ella Rahr, a tenant on the top floor, was awakened by the dog's bark. Looking out she saw flames eating their way along the hall. Her cries awakened other tenants.

Police reported finding a number of oil-soaked rags in the hallway.

WOMAN OWNER OF 'BABY FARM' HELD IN $10,000

Elizabeth M. Maxcey, proprietor of the Porter Hospital, on Townsend street, Roxbury, was held in $10,000 in Roxbury Court today for her appearance on July 26, when she will be tried on two counts charging her with illegal surgery.

Special Officer Frederick G. Higgins, who prosecuted the case before Judge Palmer, told the court that District Attorney O'Brien requested that her bail be set at $20,000. Timothy Callahan, the woman's counsel, asked for $4,000 bail.

Two young girls and a two months' old baby were taken from the Porter hospital when it was raided by Roxbury police and Inspector Pierce of the District Attorney's office. Evidence of twenty-four illegal operations, all recently, also was found, accordin to the police.

The raid was the first of a series planned by District Attorney O'Brien on baby farms which masquerade as maternity hospitals.

TWO GIRLS CONFESS.

The two girls, Ida McCrillin, twenty-two years old, of No. 607 Washington street, Salem, and Gertrude Brown, twenty-one years old, of No. 42 Hancock street, Worcester, the police say, confessed that illegal surgery had been practiced by the Maxcey woman.

The girls, together with the baby, were removed to the City Hospital, where all are seriously ill.

The baby, the police say, had been abandoned by a woman who had entered the hospital for treatment.

The raiding party consisted of Medical Examiner Timothy J. Leary, Captain Richard Fitzgerald, Inspector Harry M. Pierce and Patrolman Hayes of the District Attorney's office; Special Officer Higgins and Patrolmen Willard and Fitzpatrick of headquarters.

CHARGED $300.

The McCrillin girl told the police, the latter say, that she agreed to pay the sum of $300 for treatment.

The Brown girl declared she paid $200. Both girls talked freely.

The hospital is a fifteen-room building, well equipped. Besides the Maxcey woman, the staff consisted of two nurses and a cook. These persons were not held by the police.

The hospital was raided two years ago but without success.

The raid this time resulted from numerous complaints lodged with the District Attorney's office against hospitals of this kind conducted throughout the city. It was the first move in an official campaign launched to rid the city of resorts of this kind, the authorities announced.

CAMBRIDGE GARAGE AROUSES PROTEST

More than fifty residents of Cambridge, led by Judge E. A. Counihan, filed a protest with the license commission against granting a permit for a 90-car garage at Nos. 43-45 Lee street by C. Harold Storer.

Storer was scored bitterly for the conduct of a similar garage on West street.

Mrs. Magnus Johnson May Stay Home to Run the Farm

Minneapolis, July 18.—When Magnus Johnson goes to Washington to take his seat in the United States Senate he may go alone. Mrs. Johnson has not yet made up her mind as to whether she will accompany him, as there is the farm to look after.

"Looking after things" on the Johnson 140 acres at Kimball has been Mrs. Johnson's contribution to her husband's campaign. He says that by assuming that responsibility and leaving him free to make his campaign she "put him over."

DE VALERA WILL NOT PAY PUPPET HOMAGE

Dublin, July 18.—A message from Eamonn de Valera was read at the Sinn Fein meeting at the Mansion House. It declared that the Republicans were ready to swear allegiance to a sovereign people, but not to a puppet or an impostor. Nor would they ever swear allegiance to a foreign sovereign, whether he was a symbol or a reality.

GANNA WALSKA IS BACK; WON'T SING IN N. Y.

New York, July 18. — Ganna Walska, wife of Harold F. McCormick of Chicago, returned from Europe on the Olympic today, obscuring behind a cloud of reticence her professional plans.

Mme. Walska, who was met at the pier and affectionately greeted by her husband, had refused to see reporters on the ship. Standing with her husband, however, she said she did not expect ever to appear again on the stage in New York City.

She refused to discuss her recent debut in Paris opera, where she was rather roughly handled by French critics, and would not even talk about her reported plans to enter musical comedy, radioed from the ship in her name last night.

Acquaintances of the singer, who crossed with her on the Olympic, said she had kept to her stateroom for most of the trip, emerging only to practice daily in a little studio she had had fitted up on deck.

GENTLEMAN IS CUPID'S CAPTIVE

It's His "Occupation," and It's Quite All Right; to Wed Brookline Girl

A little word, writ by a guileless pen, will make history in Boston.

Roland E. Perrin of Haddam, Ct., filing intentions to marry Margot J. Moberly, No. 71 Parkman street, Brookline, in the space listed "occupation," wrote the word "gentleman."

Whereupon there was a hoarse hua and cry, and within ten minutes the home of Miss Moberly was surrounded by news beagles. The noise of notebooks fluttering and pencils being sharpened could be heard for blocks.

"Gentlemen," explained Miss Moberly, after she was sure the Ku Klux had not convened, "is a term commonly used in England, where Mr. Perrin and I come from, for one who has no particular profession."

OLD JOHN JONES.

By the same token, it was suggested, would a woman who has no profession list herself as "lady"?

That was beside the point.

That's all the news there is to this strange addition to American etymology. All that is left to us is a peep into the future. In the language of the fillums—Time folds up his mothy skirts and a new morrow dawns * * *

"John Jones, no address, was arrested today in a poolroom at Scollay Square, charged by the indignant proprietor with wearing a hole in one of the tables with his port elbow.

"Arraigned before Magistrate Blaha, he said he was a gentleman and was sentenced to thirty days in the workhouse. 'There are too many of you gentlemen hanging around,' said the magistrate severely."

UNDER THE YEW TREE.

"Pete Listless, who claims to have originally emigrated from Brittleford, was taken into custody in Boston Common today. For the past three weeks, barring rainy evenings, Mr. Listless has been keeping house under one of the yew trees.

"In addition to sleeping there he had installed a little oil-stove and was taking a fling at light housekeeping when Officer Murphy yanked him into court. He said he was a gentleman and was accordingly doomed to a change of address at the House of Correction."

"Languid Louis Long, celebrated traveler, was slightly injured today when a vicious brakeman threw him from the shady corner of a box car which Languid had been occupying since the train left Gary, Ind., some seven days ago. At City Hospital, where Mr. Long was taken for treatment for rear-end injuries, Mr. Long said he was a gentleman."

Getting back to the original story, it is well to quote a brief comment made by Mr. Perrin himself:

"One of the things done by a gentleman," he said, "is to refuse to take theb uble into his confidence on the matter of his forthcoming marriage, which concerns only himself and the lady who has so signally honored him."

MOTHER OF EIGHT IN WANT

Poverty and Death Descend on Home of Deserted Lynn Woman

A day ago Mrs. Kathleen Garnache, thirty-three years old, of No. 5 Crosby street, Lynn, wrote to the Boston American askin this paper to find her husband who deserted her, she charges, last October.

The Boston American sent a reporter to Mrs. Garnache's home. The reporter learned this:

Mrs. Garnache has eight children.

Last week in the Boston Children's Hospital she gave a pint of her blood to save the life of her daughter Louise, two and one-half years old.

DEATH TAKES TWIN BOY.

Four days after her husband vanished, leaving her with but $4.50—on October 15 to be exact—twins were born to her.

Four days later the boy twin lay dead in a little wooden box on the kitchen table, while Mrs. Garnache, unattended, dragged herself about the house in an endeavor to get herself food.

The other twin, being a girl and ordained with better resistance to suffering than the male, and in row Kathleen Garnache, aged nine months.

During the war, while her husband served overseas, Mrs. Garnache procured work in a Lyn factory, turning out wearing apparel for soldiers. Five of her children contracted influenza.

Only day and night work and vigil on her part saved their lives. When she went back for her job in the factory it was refused her.

"My employes might catch the flu," said the factory superintendent.

VANISHED WITH WIDOW.

Mrs. Garnache's husband is Guy Garnache. He was formerly secretary and treasurer of the Bakers' Union, Local No. 182. Mrs. Garnache says he left Lynn with the widow of a former she manufactured.

She is forty-eight years old but she "has money." That money the deserted woman said today had been lavished on her husband for a year previous to his departure. It was spent on him in the form of gifts, diamond pins, rings, watches and the like.

Today the little woman—she's dark, neat and honest—had no complaint to make.

"I want him found," she said, "and made to support my family. It's too much for me. Living is no high now and it's such a hard struggle."

She still owes $65 for the medical assistance she received when the twins came. There is also a little hospital bill, Kathleen's life only having been saved by expert attendance at Lynn Hospital.

"I go out washing and doing odd jobs," she said today, "but I can't seem to earn enough—even with what the city of Lynn gives me, $10 a week."

HOW COULD HE RUN AWAY.

Dickens has painted masterpieces with words, but he never approached the scene of the little woman attempting to cook for herself as her boy baby's body lay stiff and cold in a little wooden bo that had once held canned soups.

The doctor who helped bring those babies into the world was paid with a borrowed ten-dollar bill. That loan is still owed a poor but kindly neighbor.

Hire are the names of Mrs. Garnache's children:

Evelyn, 14 (she minds the family while her mother works); Roy, 12 (named after his father; Maretta, 11; Walter, 9; Clyde, 7; Richard, 4; Louise, 2½, and little Kathleen.

What do you think of a man like that?

MAGIC WAND ENCHANTS COL. GREEN'S WARD

RUTH LAWRENCE, BENEFICIARY OF THE LATE HETTY GREEN

Nothing that Hetty Green's millions can buy is to be denied pretty Ruth Lawrence, daughter of Amory Lawrence, a noted jurist, who was the faithful trustee of the estate of the "Richest Woman in the World." The girl now makes her home with Colonel Edward Green, (heard) and Mrs. Green, who have transformed their Summer estate at Rounds Hill, South Dartmouth, into a veritable Aladdin's palace. Here the demure Wellesley student romps, fishes, motors, swims, and dances to the full content of her heart, and all because Hetty Green felt that she owed a debt of gratitude to the little orphan's father who had helped to conserve the Green fortune.

The slim, pretty girl who makes the famous Green estate in South Dartmouth a kingdom of youth—

Who is she?

The countless tourists and curiosity-seekers who invade the most famed New England estate are asking that question.

Racing her gleaming roadster over the broad roads of Rounds Hill Point, dancing on the beach with a coterie of youthful friends, sailing a trim sloop across to Cuttyhunk—or as a demure hostess at afternoon tea—the presence of Ruth Lawrence is a constant reminder of the loyalty of the late Hetty Green to an old friend.

EVERY LUXURY.

Private instructors, a Swedish professor of physical culture, servants at her beck and call—all the luxuries that money may give are at the disposal of the demure Wellesley junior who floods the vast estate with the color of youth.

Years ago Amory A. Lawrence, a famous jurist of the New York bench, became the friend of the more famous Hetty Green. He had faithfully served the trusteeship of vast property belonging to "the richest woman in the world." The admiration of Judge Lawrence for the woman who took Wall Street at its lowest value and stood head and shoulders above many of the country's greatest financiers, brought about a lasting friendship between the two, as impersonal as it was sincere.

GENEROUS ALLOTMENT.

In drawing up her will, Hetty Green made a generous allotment to Amory Lawrence. One of her last requests of her son, Colonel Edward R. Green, was that he personally look after the little girl who was the granddaughter of her friend and adviser. Mrs. Green, in one of the codicils to her will, set aside a sum of money, the income from which was to educate and care for Ruth Lawrence, appointing Colonel Green as guardian of the fund.

Six years ago the girl's mother died. Carrying out his mother's request, Colonel Green took Ruth, then fifteen years of age, to live with him. To Ruth, Colonel and Mrs. Green are "uncle" and "aunt."

ESTATE TRANSFORMED.

Ruth first made her appearance at the beautiful New Bedford suburb two years ago when Colonel Green began his transformation of the old Howland Robinson estate at Rounds Hill. The 250 acres of untamed land that belonged to Hetty Green's family since they settled there in the days of the Mayflower, underwent a metamorphosis under the hands of the experts he assembled. Sumptuous driveways, hothouses, bathing piers and elaborate bathhouses appeared over the vast estate. A mansion of gray stone and marble, fitted with art treasures from the four corners of the globe, surmounted the pinnacle of Rounds Hill.

ALL FOR RUTH.

"The whole place is virtually Ruth's in the Summer time," Colonel Green explained, with a sweep of his hand toward the gay group who frolicked on the sands.

"There are dances every night—except on days when Ruth has played hockey from a class.

"There were days you know, when some folks 'cut' classes at school, and it means extra study in the Summer. But when these young people cut a single class down here, there are no dances for two nights. It's a good way to fix things."

For the use of Ruth and her friends, the Colonel is having constructed a marble salt water swimming pool.

"The water is rather cold here some days, when the tide drives in the cold currents from the Atlantic, and we thought a pool would be lots better. The water can be kept in the pool for a certain time while the sun warms it," says the Colonel.

The final touch of luxury to Miss Lawrence's vacation is added by the fitting up of the houseboat "Pioneer," the houseboat used by President Harding on his Florida cruise. The "Pioneer" is undergoing painting and polishing, preparatory to a short cruise with Miss Lawrence and her party.

"I thought I could stay on here without anyone bothering to find out who I was," Miss Lawrence smiled back at the cameraman, "and now the big secret is out."

'SHEIK' NOT HER ONLY LOVE

Figured Previously in Clandestine Affair That Brought About Two Divorces

One love may be enough for most women, but Florence Hunt-Cronin-Wallace, charming affinity of James W. Patterson, believes in variety. She admits it, and the story of her hectic life proves it. Hitherto unpublished information reveals Mrs. Wallace as heroine of several triangles.

Her former marriages and affairs de coeur involved some of the best known men in Massachusetts. Her ex-husbands include a Boston millionaire and a prominent member of the Massachusetts bar. Her prospective husband, "Pat the Shell," is neither as wealthy nor as prominent as his predecessor, but Mrs. Wallace says she loves him best of all.

PROPOSES TO WED.

"And I propose to marry him as soon as Mrs. Patterson obtains her divorce," she declares.

"If at first you don't succeed, try, try, try again," is the motto of the little woman who believes the third time never fails.

Mrs. Wallace was Mrs. William F. Cronin before she became Mrs. Edward F. Wallace. Cronin is president of the Standard Tire & Rubber Co. and of the Racine Rubber Co. He is living in Belmont with the second Mrs. Cronin, who happens to be his first wife's sister, Lea.

Another sister is Mrs. Howard Rand of Brookline's most exclusive set.

PLANNED FREQUENT TRIPS.

In the days when Florence was the first Mrs. Cronin, she and her husband were very friendly with the Edward F. Wallaces. Wallace was counsel for the Massachusetts State Board of Labor and Industry, and probably the most intimate friend of Senator Dvid I. Walsh. The two couples were inseparable. Cronin, immensely wealthy, worshipped his pretty wife, and showered her with money.

"Let's get the Wallaces, Bill," she frequently suggested, "and take a little trip somewhere."

So Bill would phone Ed, and the two wives—Florence and Margaretta—would make plans for a holiday jaunt. It was a long time before Mrs. Wallace realized Florence had fallen in love with Ed.

Cronin meanwhile was blissfully unconscious of the fact. Finally the clandestine romance became apparent.

DIVORCES OBTAINED.

Mrs. Wallace is said to have confronted her husband and Florence in his office at No. 1 Beacon street and to have created a frightful scene.

Scores of young Wallace's influential friends sought in vain to smooth things over. Florence, according to her ex-friends, admitted the little trips had been planned in order that she and Wallace might be together.

Divorces were quietly obtained, Cronin divorcing Florence, and Margaretta ridding herself of Ed. She obtained custody of their little son and went back to live with her father.

Then Florence and Wallace were married.

For a little while all was well. Then along came James W. Patterson of the Hinchcliffe Patterson Motor Car Co., distributor of Jordan cars, rich and dashing.

HARVARD CREW HEAD TO WED SOCIETY GIRL

New York, July 18.—Announcement was made today of the engagement of Berkley McKee Henry, Jr., captain of next year's Harvard 'Varsity crew, and Miss Barbara Whitney, daughter of Harry Payne Whitney. The marriage will not take place until after McKee's graduation next June.

Miss Whitney's father is a New York banker, and a graduate of Yale. Mrs. Whitney, Barbara's mother, is the noted sculptress. Young McKee is one of the most popular men in Harvard. He is president of the Phillips Brooke House Association, and is Ibis on the Lampoon. He is also a member of the undergraduate committee of the Harvard Union, the Hasty Pudding Club, D. K. E., Porcellian Club, S. K. Club and the St. George's School Club of Harvard.

DEMPSEY-GIBBONS FIGHT FILMS SEIZED

Los Angeles, July 18.—Department of Justice agents at the Horsley studio yesterday confiscated five reels of motion picture films of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight at Shelby, Mont., July 4. No arrests were made, but the officers said several were in prospect. Harry Grosman, who made the pictures, said: "We surrendered the pictures voluntarily. We are confident they will be returned. We are going to exhibit them in Montana only."

GIVE UP HOPE OF 12-MILE RUM LIMIT

Washington, July 18. (I.N.S.)—Administration officials admitted today they had virtually given up hope of solving the ship liquor and rum running problems by extension of the American right of search and seizure to twelve miles at sea.

More than three weeks have passed since the proposal was made to the allied capitals by Secretary of State Hughes. No replies have been received.

Led by Great Britain, the great maritime powers are said to be "manifestly unfavorable" to any extension of the three-mile limit and officials concede that with Congress alone rests the solution.

Opposition was voiced to the plan of Senator Sterling, Republican, of South Dakota to introduce a measure extending the territorial jurisdiction of the United States to all waters within 12 miles of the American shore.

"Such a method of gaining our point," one spokesman for the administration declared, "would be most drastic and might well lead to international complications. A nation can't just extend its territorial limits; it must have a mighty good reason—one that would find justification in the eyes of other powers and that would be applied to meet a situation approaching a national emergency."

POISONED BERRY VICTIM BURIED

Lee S. Carlson, the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Carlson of No. 17 Wilson street, Quincy, who died from eating poisoned blueberries, was buried at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Lee, with his brother, Carl E. Carlson, ten years old, went blueberrying Sunday morning. The brother is recovering.

4 FISH TRUST MEN PAROLED AT RUTLAND

The four Fish Trust men recently transferred from Deer Island to the State Prison camp at Rutland were paroled today by the State Parole Board and released by G. A. Barrett, deputy superintendent of the camp.

They are: Robert Phillips, Alvin G. Baker, Louis B. Goodspeed and Willard R. Cox.

The men were sentenced to Deer Island on April 6 after having been found guilty of attempting to maintain exorbitant fish prices during the war.

"They were exemplary prisoners in every way," said Bacon. "I am glad to see them paroled."

Ten of the fashion still remain at Deer Island. Two of these are said to be seriously ill.

Five at Deer Island are eligible for parole at the discretion of the Parole Board. They are: William E. Curran, Ephraim N. Cook, Fred G. Phillips, Winfield S. Kendrick, and Albert E. Watts. The rest, eligible for parole Aug. 6, are: Frederick M. Dyer, John Burns, Jr., Ernest A. James, Josiah Paine and Joseph A. Rich.

The fish dealers paroled were sentenced to five months' imprisonment, beginning April 6, and fines of $500 each.

UPHOLD FIRING OF TENNESSEE FACULTY

Knoxville, Tenn., July 18 (I.N.S.)—The trustees of the University of Tennessee today decided to uphold President Morgan's dismissal of seven professors, Morris Mulvania, Jess W. Sprowls, John R. Neal, Robert, Bradford, Robert S. Ellis, Asa A. Schaeffer and Mrs. A. M. Withers. The trouble is said to have arisen from teaching of evolution.

THE WAYS OF A HUSBAND—By ANN LISLE

A Splendid Sequel to the Famous Story of Wedded Life, "When a Girl Marries"

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Jim and Anne find happiness again on a honeymoon spent in the apartment of Betty Winston, loaned for the occasion. They go to Dreamwold for a Sunday dinner with Jennie and are met in the grounds by Rosa, who ignores Anne. Rosa advises the discharge of Mabel Storrs to save the big salary. This Anne resents. Evvy helps Anne arrange her apartments and a dinner is given as a housewarming. Phoebe grows hysterical on receipt of Carlotta's wedding invitation. Betty speaks to Anne about Ralph's fondness for the latter.

By Ann Lisle

VIRGINIA was staring at me, her eyes narrowed and her face strangely tense.

"You said it yourself!" she cried. "You said I have the mother heart. Then—won't that make it easy to decide who's going to take the baby?"

Virginia's sudden demand that we must decide who was going to take the baby came like a thunderbolt out of a smiling sky. I'd never thought of anyone "taking the baby." It seemed the most natural thing in the world that the baby should be with Neal. So I answered calmly enough.

"Carol will stay with Neal, of course. And I suppose he'll want to make his home with me, don't you? He'll never be able to endure staying here—nor being alone either."

Virginia didn't answer me.

The strained look which had come into her face intensified. Her face was gray and the skin seemed to be stretching tight against her cheek bones. Her mouth had an avid expression. I felt that her grief was making her half mad for a moment. It seemed best to change the subject abruptly.

"Shall we have lunch now with Neal waiting for Noah?" I asked. "Or will you lie down and rest a bit first?"

"Why should I lie down any more than you?" asked Virginia so tartly that our beautiful closeness of the past few hours seemed an impossible dream.

"I'm a business woman — used to going through straining of force," I said. "You've been so brave and sweet all morning, Jennie. But it can't be easy——"

Virginia laughed cruelly.

"Is it easy for you?" she demanded. "Surely even—a trained business woman must feel the tragedy of Phoebe's going."

"Jennie, dear!" I protested.

The words broke down the barriers of her control, and she fell to sobbing bitterly and wildly, crying out that she couldn't bear it.

The Baby's Future

When at last I managed to quiet her, I suggested again that she lie down. But Virginia had sprung to her mid-time poise. She seemed determined to bar self-control [illegible] power which [illegible] the first

"We didn't finish our discussion of—the baby's future she said. "That's a matter we ought to settle promptly."

"Oh, not we, Jennie," I answered peacefully. "It's Neal's baby. He's the one to decide. Don't you think so?"

"It's my sister's baby," Jennie replied with a reversal. I could feel.

"Yes, dear—but Carol is all Neal has," I suggested gently. "Perhaps he'll want to take another apartment and find a nurse and housekeeper——"

"You talk as if money were no object," smiled Jeanie.

"Of course, I'd like to have Neal come to me," I acknowledged. "It seems the most natural thing in the world. I'm his big sister and Jim is Phoebe's brother. We'd be glad to have him. But somehow the suggestion didn't seem to please you——"

"Still it's Neal who matters," suggested Jeanie.

I fell into her trap.

"That's quite true," I agreed.

Then Jane faced me, this lipped and unsmiling.

Baby First

"It's my sister's baby who matters," she declared passionately. "You are at business all day. If you take the baby it will still be a matter of her being brought up by nurse and governesses. That isn't how the—only baby in the Harrison family ought to be trained."

I felt there was something in Virginia's argument. But I was positively certain that Neal would never go to live with Jeanie. And the one thing of vital importance was to keep Neal close to his baby girl and in the warmth of a home.

ROTATION OF SUN

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"What is the exact time of the sun's rotation on its axis? It is twenty-three and one-half, twenty-four or twenty-five days?—W. A., Elgin, Ill."

THE time varies with the distance from the sun's equator. At and near the equator the time of rotation seems to be about twenty-five days. In about latitude 30 degrees either north or south of the equator the period of rotation is about twenty-six and one-half days. In about latitude 45 degrees on either side of the equator the rotation period is lengthened to at least twenty-seven and one-half days.

This curious variation of the rotation period with the latitude would be sufficient to prove, if there was no other evidence pointing to the same conclusion, that the surface of the sun is not solid and rigid like that of the earth, but must consist of matter in either the liquid or the gaseous state. Owing to the enormous heat there, together with other easily observed phenomena, we conclude that the sun—at least at its exterior and at great depths below—is gaseous and not liquid.

To understand why the non-uniform rotation of the sun proves that it cannot be a solidly encrusted globe like the earth, consider what would be the effect if our equatorial regions rotated in a shorter time—say an hour—than the part that we inhabit, about 40 degrees from the equator. At present the whole earth everywhere, all over its surface, rotates once in twenty-four hours. But let the equator break step and begin to rotate in only twenty-three hours, and all the tropics, north and south alike, would be ripped to pieces. The rocks down to the foundations of the crust would be ground as in a mill, and the entire frame of the planet would be shaken asunder.

But in fact on the sun the rotation period seems to increase progressively from equator toward poles, so that there are no two adjacent circles of latitude that move exactly together. If the surface of the sun consisted of floating blocks crowded together like ice in a Spring river-flood, and you tried to walk over their tossing and grinding surface, going across from pole toward equator, it would be like walking from the edge toward the centre of a moving platform, whose speed increased, not at wide and definite intervals, but continually from step to step.

ABOUT YOUR BEAUTY

By MARIA JERITZA.

The Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women in the World.

THE simplest remedies sometimes are best, and the simplest beauty measures are almost always best. Variety adds interest, however, to every line of work, and so it is well to make use of its "spice" in our regime in order to avoid all danger of being bored.

Except for this need of variety your toilet-shelf might contain a scant six or seven "beautifiers" and still meet every need. A standard, simple soap adapted to your skin, a pure cold cream, a good talc, rice powder for occasional use, a cleansing, refreshing lotion such as rubbing alcohol, a small jar of olive oil, a lemon or two—really, the list might almost end there.

But the morning is sure to come when a new ingredient in your bath, such as a dash of sea salt and a half cup of aromatic vinegar, will add new zest and interest to your toilette.

And choosing a new cold cream to alternate with the old "tried and true" favorite brand, is sure to be fun. But be sure that the new toilet requisites are as pure as those you have been using and are as well adapted to your need. Otherwise, little may be gained, much lost by the change.

For instance, if like myself you enjoy a homemade cold cream, choose a formula with ingredients so simple that you can easily procure them in fresh, pure condition. Let us say that you have been making much use of lemons. Then why not try cucumbers, instead, as a base for your cream and your hand lotion?

The formula I shall give for cucumber cold cream is highly recommended. This cream, like all cold creams, should not be left on the face overnight. After from ten minutes to half an hour it should be gently wiped off with absorbent cotton or the squares of linen paper that are prepared for this purpose.

Here is the recipe: Almond oil, one ounce; olive oil, one ounce; white wax, one ounce, spermaceti, one ounce; essence of cucumber, two ounces.

The Great Reform Novel of the Year, Baring Innermost Secrets of Luxury-Loving Class

"I can't leave him," said Dee. "He loves me so."

Intimately Revealing the Life of a Modern and Precocious Society Flapper

START THIS BIG, NEW STORY TODAY

Mona Fentriss, young, beautiful and the wife of a consulting engineer, has been told by her physician, Bob Osterhoud, who is in love with her, that she has only a short time to live. Mona gives a gay party, telling Pat to go to bed, but the latter borrows a sister's dress, steals downstairs and has "a taste of life." Connie goes to a dance at the club and takes too much punch. She is brought home by Fred Browning, with whom she had unevenfully spent the night. Sel Thorpe gives Pat a "real" kiss. Mona dies and Constance receives a call from Cary Scott, her mother's first admirer. Scott is much taken with Pat. A party is planned for the Dangerfields to christen the new swimming pool. A thunder storm puts out the lights and the guests go into the water without clothes. Dee modestly hesitates on the balcony and third there—the lights came on, revealing her in a blinding glare. One of the bathers is saved from drowning by Cary Scott. Pat and Cary Scott become interested in each other. Pat returns from school and declares she is "out for trouble" this time. Scott and Pat confess their love and Scott, whose wife is living, says good-by to her. Pat pretends to Dr. Osterhoud that she is about to have a baby. He asks her to marry him. Then she admits she has tricked him and that it is Dee who wants his aid. Cary Scott comes back and Pat succumbs to him. Dee's husband is badly hurt. Wollaston urges Dee to elope with him.

NOW GO ON WITH THIS ENTHRALLING STORY.

"I LOVE you with every breath I take," Dee cried low and passionately. She snatched her hands from his grip, wreathed them back of his head, drew his lips down upon hers. "I've never dreamed what it could be to love as I love you."

"Come with me," he said.

The wife looked about her like a trapped creature. "I've got to make him understand," she muttered to herself in travail of spirit. "I've got to make him see and—and help me. Stanley," she pleaded, "he kind to me and don't stop me till I've finished telling what I've got to tell."

She related the accident and its sequel in few and simple words. For a time of pulse-beats Wollaston was silent, then:

"Poor devil!" he murmured. "Poor, poor devil!"

"So, you see, dear love——"

"I see nothing but that we belong to each other. You can't deny that kiss and what it means. You can't let me go back alone, Dee . . . Shall I stay?"

"Oh, no! No! I couldn't bear it."

"Then you must come with me. Now. Tonight."

"For God's sake, Stanley, don't! Don't kiss me." She was fighting for strength, for breath. "Don't make me——"

"Dee! Dee! Where are you?" The petulant, flattened voice of Delphinium came like a stab of pain through the night. A light tentuous and sharp, flashed out from the wrecked man's window. Its ray touched the cedar overshadowing them.

Dee answered at once. "I'm coming, Jim. Just a moment. Good-bye, Stanley."

He gathered her into a slow, overmastering pressure of body to body, face to face.

"Dee, I love you. I want you."

"I know. God, how I know!"

"Am you going to get me. What does anything else matter?"

"Oh, love; don't make it so bitter hard for me! I can't leave him. He needs me so. I can't! I can't!"

"Dee The pain has come back. Where are you?"

"Coming, Jim, dear!" She turned away from Wollaston without another look; heard him thrashing through the bushy growth like a man bedeviled; felt her knees sag and give way.

She toppled slowly forward and lay, face down upon the earth that gives life, that gives courage, that gives endurance to bear the deadliest hurt, her fingers tearing in agony at the young grasses.

Presently she heaved herself up and went into the house. Her mouth was firm, her eyes tearless.

A good sort. A good sport.

For two weeks Pat and Scott lived in a paradise of constant dangers and passionate adventure. Fate played into their hands; James, as he recovered a little strength, developed a strong inclination for Scott's society, and insisted that he remain at their house as guest. The two men played chess and bezique. To Dee, in her time of ordeal and sacrifice, it was a relief without which she must have broken to have the invalid taken off her hands for a good part of every day.

Twice daily Pat came over from the Knoll, often staying to luncheon on her morning visit and returning directly after dinner to make a fourth hand at bridge whenever James was in fit condition to play. As a matter of course, Scott took her home and ostensibly left her while he went for a long walk alone, before returning to the James place. In reality those hours were spent with Pat in her conservatory.

"When are you going to get tired of me?" she asked gayly, one gold-studded night of stars and soft winds as they sat together at the open window of the secluded room. She was perched on the arm of his chair, her hand overhanging the back to touch the short curls at his temple. He drew her pain downward and smoke with his lips lightly pressed upon it.

"When that planet yonder tumbles down out of the sky into your lap."

"But you ought to you know. They always do."

"Still obsessed by the movies," he interpreted playfully. "This is the real world we're living in."

"Sometimes I wonder if it is. It doesn't seem too real."

"You're a phantom yourself," said he jocosely. "I never quite grasp and hold you."

"Yet I belong to you, don't I? Or is that just a—a silly form of words that hasn't any real meaning."

"It's a phrase. You belong to yourself. You always will. There's that quality of the eternally unattainable, the eternally virginal, about you."

"Is there? I love to have you say that! Do you truly think it, Carey?"

"In the depths of my heart—where you live."

"But it wouldn't be so if we were married."

"It would always be so, my darling."

Ever keenly interested in her own character and its reflex upon others, she took this under thoughtful consideration.

"I've never felt that I could really belong to anybody. Not even to you. If I could think it, then perhaps I'd want to marry you. Does that mean that I don't love you, Cary? Or what?"

"Not as I love you," he replied with gloomy patience. "It means that I've got to wait."

"Here" she flashed at him with her bewildering smile "that you've been threatening to go away again!"

"I ought to," he groaned. "I just haven't the will power. It would be like giving up home to leave you now."

"Poor darling!" But there was a touch of mockery in her pity.

"If it weren't so terribly dangerous for you."

Her proud little head went up.

"I told you long ago that I always did what I wanted. If I take a chance I am willing to pay for it. I'm not afraid."

"Because you've never suffered. You've never had to take unsafe risks."

"Have you?"

"I'm talking it now in the thought of our separation. Pat, for Sindy's sake let me get free, if it is only to be friends in name——"

"Let me out! She called scornfully. "I won't be captured, compelled. You can see if you want to, as well as you want to."

"Pat!"

"Yes. I know. Her life brushed his cheek in sweet contrition. "I'm sorry. You mean it of me. But I haven't—don't—want—to—marry you. I don't want to marry anybody. And have a lot of kids. And look like Con does now. His wedding. Cary, were you ever sorry?" she demanded intensely.

"No."

"I wouldn't bear it if you had been. Her body was that way, wasn't you? Even to me?"

"Even from. I never was" "If anyone asked you that about me you'd answer by all your gods you were it. Wouldn't you?"

"Yes."

Lying About It

"Now I'm about it" I hate to think of your lying. I wonder whether I would if it was not up to me or whether I'd admit that we are lovers." She brooded darkly for a moment over the word. "I didn't mean to be, you know," she added naively.

"Whatever fault there was is mine," he claimed honorably. "If there is any just God——"

She stopped her fingers over his lips, putting him short. "Don't, Cary. Don't say 'If.' Of course there is."

She rose, giving her sombrero the spank, sliding wriggle with which she was wont to dough off emotionality, problems or boredom for solution. "Oh, if these things are going to happen they happen," she muttered. "That's the fate sent to me. But I'm done. We can't go on forever. We'll crash, some way."

"Does anyone suspect? Dee I don't think so. She's got troubles enough of her own, the dope. If Connie only would. She's been acting some unseemly kind of nonsense."

"Connie? Nonsense?"

"Oh, I don't know. I told her to go to the devil that I was about twelve, and she told me I'd better remember particularly that I was."

"I don't like that, said he. "Oh, well, I don't like it me-s myself. But what can she do?"

"Talk."

"Not outside the family. Confidences within the family. Connie told Fred."

"That would be a pleasant complication," he observed grimly.

"There will be more and more complications all the time," she fretted. "If you only weren't married——"

"But I thought——" he began eagerly.

"Then there wouldn't be any risk. We could be supposed to be engaged. I suppose we would be engaged," she added brightly, as if a new thought had struck her.

"Being engaged means being married eventually," he pointed out.

Not These Days

"Not these days," she retorted. "It doesn't hold you up for anything and we could leap out of it when we got good and ready. Only—this isn't the kind of a thing you can leap out of, is it?" A vibrant earnestness, the sincerity of her face. "We're getting beetle, Cary. Let's stop it."

"That's wisdly in your hands, dear love."

"Yes," she said discontentedly; "you've always put everything up to me or let me do my own way—that's what Eve gone so far. I wonder if you guess that was the way to get her. You're an adventurer. Like white hunters—Mountebanks—Manchus with queues. I'm dropped to the floor in front of him, clasped her knees with his knee, turned up a face of passionate entreating force, speaking in a lowered voice. "Listen, dear. Next week I'm going back to Philadelphia. I'm going out for golf with Chester. But—I want so to explain that till the end of it I'll know that time together. Shall I be one evening. And then your own program."

"I don't want it. But it is necessary. You are right." he assented wearily.

"I don't want it. But it is necessary. You are right." he assented wearily.

"Darling!" He flashed at him with her bewildering smile "that you've been threatening to go away again!"

THREE-MINUTE TRIPS

WHERE FEET ARE HIDDEN

By Temple Manning

HUNDREDS of factories in our country whir all day making shoes and stockings, so that the feet of our women may be attractively shod and thousands of workmen are kept busy from night to morning at the task.

Each year more shoe shops spring up in every town and city. And each year the women wearing prettier shoes and thereby are giving more publicity to their feet.

In our country footwear plays as important a part in a well-dressed woman's costume as does her dress or her hat.

Besides the thought given to externals, much attention is paid to the feet themselves. Many children are taught special exercises, so that when they grow to womanhood they will have pretty feet. The possession of well-shaped feet is expected of a woman of any pretentions to beauty. And many a plain woman is rendered attractive simply because she is the possessor of trim feet, attractively shod.

"Why are such pains taken to have beautiful feet and such thought given to dressing them properly?" one of our Eskimo sisters might ask upon discovering the feverish delight our women take in bedecking their feet. And how shocked she would be to be told that the reason is that the women want their feet to be admired. Fog people to look at women's feet would startle an Eskimo woman to the point of bursting. Nothing like that happens in her frigid country!

A woman who would allow anyone to look at her feet would be considered not only vulgar, but positively immodest!

It is true that an Eskimo woman will sit in the door of her igloo—stripped to the waist—taking an air bath. That is nothing. Should some one come near her she would not reach for her fur jacket, but would quickly sit on her feet. For it would mortify her and embarrass an Eskimo lady beyond words if any one should look at her feet.

FOXY GRANDPA STORY

HOW BOBBY GOT INTO WRONG BED

"BOBBY," I cried "you look like a big baboon climbing around up there in that tree!"

And he did, for he was walking along the big branches holding on to them with his hands and swinging from one to the other.

"This is great, Foxy Grandpa. I'm having a fine time," Bobby laughed down at me.

I went on making notes in my book of interesting things I had seen during our trip to the island of Borneo—for that's where we were—and I didn't pay much attention to the boy.

Suddenly I heard him shout:

"Foxy Grandpa! Foxy Grandpa! Look what I've found! This tree grows the funniest nuts I've ever seen. Look where I am."

I stood up and stretched my neck until I could see way up near the top of the tree and there I saw Bobby perched on a regular little platform which was formed by the intertwining of the branches of the tree.

"Well, Bobby, you've got a regular lookout up there, haven't you?"

"Lookout? Why, it's a regular bed, Foxy Grandpa! I think I'll take a snooze up here. Call me when you want to go home."

Then he stretched himself out on the platform and in a few minutes he was in dreamland.

But Bobby didn't stay there very long and I'll tell you why.

As I was writing in my book, I felt that something or somebody was looking at me, so I glanced up and I don't mind telling you that my hair stood right up on end.

And my hair wasn't the only thing that was on end, either, for there were Bunny's ears—he had been asleep beside me—standing up as straight as two telegraph poles!

What we saw was enough to make them do it, too. For there, standing right in front of us, was a great big orang-outang! I give you my word he was a big as I mean! There he stood glowering at me and showing his teeth and growling for all he was worth.

I—er, it's up to you to get us out of this in a good humor," I whispered. "I know orang-outangs are very affectionate and become attached to those around them when they are tamed—but this one is wild—as wild as the wild man of Borneo."

As I spoke, the huge monkey looked up in the tree and spied Bobby. Now, you should have heard him hiss and growl. I was sorry we had come to Borneo.

But Bunny with his animal talk and tact finally in some mysterious way or other had the orang-outang smiling at us.

When I saw his expression change from a scowl to something that looked like a smile, my heart stopped beating so fast and I started to breathe naturally again.

"He says it's all right, Foxy Grandpa. He thought at first you might harm him. And he also says that Bobby can sleep in his bed as long as he likes."

"In his bed!" I exclaimed.

"Sure," Bunny replied. "That's the orang-outang's bed in which Bobby is sleeping."

I asked Bunny to thank the great monkey, but I decided right then and there that although we looked friendly, it was better to go home.

So I called Bobby. He climbed out of the orang-outang's bed in the tree-top and we broke all records getting out of those woods.

—Portland Oregonian.

"The conflict of a woman's soul and its influence upon two lovers of diametrically opposed characters, make an absorbing story. There are some superb scenes with moving, dramatic situations, and the amazing gift for color and action with which Mrs. Atherton is endowed, make this a story of intense vitality and magnificent literary attainment."

—Buffalo Courier.

"BLACK OXEN is a drama which for psychological penetration and insight into the deeper recesses of woman's nature has rarely, if ever, been equalled in fiction."

Honolulu Star-Bulletin.

"In the next few months, perhaps weeks, BLACK OXEN will become one of the best selling books in Chicago and by the middle of Spring any woman who has not read it will find herself hopelessly out of the talk of the town, for it has many elements of popularity—it is as timely as today's newspaper. It has both mystery and suspense and a love story. It is more frank than anything F. Scott Fitzgerald or Robert Herrick ever attempted, and yet entirely respectable, and it marks the high point of achievement for Mrs. Atherton as a novelist."

Doctor—"Well, Mr. Jones, how's that medicine I gave you to improve your hearing?"

Recently, on one of the extremely hot days, my little six-year-old girl could not seem to drink enough water to quench her thirst. Finally, after having had several glasses of water, she said, "I'm so dry that I can't seem to get wet!"

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

The Boston American will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment in My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, Boston American.

The mother was busy sewing. Her little boy, 6, and girl, 7 years old, were playing on the lawn. Presently there came a rap at the front door which the mother answered in person, so greatly increasing the children that they repeated the joke several times.

The next time there was another knock at the door, and supposing the children were again responsible, the mother exclaimed: "If you are white come in. If you are black stay out."

Just imagine her embarrassment when the door opened and the minister, a very dignified old gentleman, entered.

HARRIS N. MERRILL,
Buxton, Me.

"In BLACK OXEN Mrs. Atherton has produced an absorbing romance of imaginative feminine psychology. Quite the finest thing she has done since 'The Conqueror'. It is a story with the true quality of romance brilliantly realized. Unique in the originality of its conception. The central theme is one that comes but once in a generation. Instinctively one returns to the Pesude Chagin of Balzac for a story of such potential mystery, fanciful symbolism, and startling originality."

Owen Johnson. N.Y. Herald

AT BREAKFAST

There are 321 grizzly bears in the State of California, but practically none of them can recite The Face on the Bar-Room Floor" without stammering.

Twenty-two college boys say that they have never been kissed, and after looking at their pictures most girls will readily believe it.

On one farm in Africa there are 116 ostriches, but as yet no one has been able to find out what they think of the League of Nations.

A Government investigator says there are 73,843 lightning bugs in one election district in Illinois. However, it is extremely doubtful whether the Republican party will rely on them to elect their candidates in 1924.

According to a prominent professor, the world will come to an end in the near future. However, less than two per cent. of the country's landlords have repented of their sins to the extent of lowering the rent.

A statistician has estimated that there will be 826,404 marriages this month, but makes no prediction as to how many of them will be successful.

AT BREAKFAST

"John, were you playing poker again last night? Don't try to lie to me; I found a chip in your pocket. I don't see how you can do such things when I try so hard to save every penny that we earn; it's simply throwing money away. You didn't get habits like that from my side of the family . . . Take your knife off the tablecloth. "You'll have to let me have five dollars to get the groceries today; we haven't got a crust in the house. . . . What did I do with the money you gave me yesterday? Why I got some chances down at the carnival last night; they were raffling off a blanket and I thought it would be nice to get something to cover up baby at night. Somebody has to think of the children, you never do. . . . Don't preach to me; I'll smash you with this coffee-pot. . . .

"Harry Jenkins dropped in yesterday. There's a gentleman for you. I could have married him if I had been sensible and listened to Mother. Goodness knows I got a blank when I drew you. . . . You'd better stay home tonight or you can get somebody else to keep house for you. . . . Don't sweat, at me, take your hat and get out; I'll beat the rugs myself.

"Mrs. Atherton is frank in revelations of the experiences of the 'lady of mystery,' BLACK OXEN presents an interesting study of feminine moods and wiles. Mrs. Atherton is a novelist of experience and her novels have rare vitality." Philadelphia Record

"BLACK OXEN"

STARTS MONDAY, JULY 23

"Sensational novels have not been lacking among the more than twenty volumes of fiction that Mrs. Atherton has given to her multitude of readers. We venture to assert that BLACK OXEN is the most sensational of the lot. The theme is not new in fiction, but you may be sure that Mrs. Atherton handles it as it was never handled before by any writer. It is a theme forever new and forever near to the heart of woman. I can well believe that no novel on the Spring list of any publisher will occasion as wide discussion." Boston Herald.

"Gertrude Atherton's genius is not essentially self-critical, nevertheless, it is indubitably genius, genius of a higher quality than that possessed by the artist who struggles with words and phrases to achieve his ideal of perfection.

BLACK OXEN may be considered her most brilliant book up to date—once begun it doesn't permit itself to be dropped until finished. It will more firmly seat its author in the unique place she now occupies in our literature."—Carl Van Vechten in N. Y. Nation.

MR. GALLAGHER and MR. SHEAN

DOES time hang heavily on your hands?

Write a Gallagher and Shean lyric. Choose your own subject. See if you can register. We print one a day, and the best one of the week gets an original Gallagher and Shean drawing—the same as those which appear daily in the Boston American.

Oh, Mr. Gallagher! Oh, Mr. Gallagher!
I've a friend who's badly crippled, so to speak;
Though he hasn't got the gout,
He has hard work to get out,
For at times his locomotion's very weak.

Oh, Mr. Shean! Oh, Mr. Shean!
To appreciate his plight I'm very keen;
For he sure must suffer pain,
When he goes out in the rain;
JUMBAGO, MR. GALLAGHER?
SUM LEG, OH! MR. SHEAN!

Address your Gallagher and Shean lyrics to Gallagher and Shean, care of the Boston American, No. 30 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

WE WONDER

What they're doing outside the three-mile limit tonight.

Why a waiter is never upset by being tipped.

If it isn't harder to listen at a banquet than to speak.

Why a saxophone player never catches sleeping sickness.

If we couldn't obtain the exclusive rights for issuing licenses to bootleggers.

What a finger-print expert does about it when he gets his collars from the laundry.

If they play poker with marks in Germany where the players put their lighted cigarettes.

Why the engineer waits until all the Pullman passengers are asleep before he runs through a boiler factory town.

Where the corn is in corned beef.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

THIS is the time of the year when the guy who has nothing to busy trying to add something to it.

IT'S no fun going around all Summer with a pocket full of punctures.

ONCE you use a five-dollar bill you can't very well take it in and have it calcined.

YOU can buy substitutes for pretty near everything except money.

NOBODY ever heard of a bank where you can purchase second hand dollars.

A MAN may be willing to loan you his automobile or farm mower, but you'd have a hard job borrowing his pocket book.

A WALLET is like a chorus girl, it takes you a long time to fill either one of them.

THE most pathetic sight in the world is to see a guy with a nickel in one hand and a picture of the poor house in the other.

ONE tired agent has lost five-cent pipes to blame out to the poor house for a room.

THE line was busy and to make it worse the telephone company didn't return his nickel.

IT'S difficult to become a millionaire, but you can go broke without any practice.

NOBODY ever heard of a sucker who had to refinance.

NINETY per cent. of our poor people are honest. That's why there's poor.

IT'S all right to be honest, but you should wait until you get enough money.

MOST of our citizens would like to be honest, but they can't afford it.

THE average business man wants to be accommodating if he has to be crushed to do it.

THERE'S not a single person walking the straight and narrow path today who didn't have to take a detour before they got on to it.

TO BE CONGENIAL COMPANION CULTIVATE FRESH AIR.

"Men are staying too much indoors and missing too little," says a noted writer.

Sometimes [illegible] are chargeable. Tennis was to blame when most players [illegible] and women spent too much time in musty [illegible] golf [illegible] week.

[illegible] come to realize that [illegible] of [illegible] and [illegible] will not do the business for them.

The man who [illegible] his work with a sensible amount of healthful outdoor exercise is going to live longer and feel better while he lives.

Everlasting grind without respite, or recreation taken at the expense of sleep and rest, is not beneficial but positively harmful.

Men and women both should cultivate a love for fresh air and they will be more congenial companions and be more useful to society in general.

"My prediction is that this novel will interest more women than any novel since Vance Thompson's "Eat and Grow Thin." It is more than likely that its sensational theme will overshadow its higher merits as an entertaining and well planned novel containing a clever and delicious expose of the feminine mind. I can but suggest that if you are a male and want a hole for your little complexes and vanities, read BLACK OXEN. I do not need to suggest that women read it. They will soon enough if they find out that it has to do with the rejuvenization of youth and beauty." Burton Rascoe—N. Y. Tribune

"Is the finest of a long line of brilliant achievements. It will create a new place for Mrs. Atherton and will be discussed everywhere. BLACK OXEN is by far her greatest story, and to me at least, the most absorbing novel by anyone which I have read in a couple of years." Charles Hanson Towne—Bookman

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

Sid is dead, the doctors called it cancer of the stomach. But I rather think the deeper cause was overwork, mental strain year after year, which took too much vitality away from the rest of the body.

For years I feared the premature ending of this remarkable human career—Sid, you know, was John M. Siddall, the American Magazine; not of the American Magazine, but the American Magazine, for that publication was Sid and Sid was that publication.

A short time ago he confessed to me that he had never had an hour's vacation since he took hold, back in 1915. He told me how he worked at his office all day, spending much time quizzing people who came to sell him articles, and then how he worked at home until midnight, six nights a week.

I said to him, "You're a fool." Then I did my best to scare him by telling him how the big man and the next big man worked himself to death. He was willing to listen —he always was.

But his come-back was this: "I enjoy doing this work more than I enjoy doing anything else. It wouldn't be any vacation. It wouldn't be half as much fun as working."

Last December I wrote in this column:

"I have just had a shock. I ran into a friend, a man who has been carrying on not only considerably valuable, but also strikingly profitable, work for years. And his appearance had changed so much since I had seen him earlier in the year that I felt alarmed. I saw at a glance that something was wrong with his health. He confessed that his digestion had gone back on him.

"This man hasn't taken as much as a three days' vacation in many years. Finally as my mind dwelt upon his national value of the activities this man is carrying on, I made him this offer: 'I'll go to Rochester or some other health place with you for a week or two at any time you name within the next six weeks.'

"He consented to consider it but I doubt if he will go."

He didn't go. Now, at forty-nine, he is dead—the man I was writing about was John M. Siddall.

* * *

How did this youngish man take hold of a publication having only 400,000 circulation and succeed in building it up to a circulation exceeding 2,000,000?

The answer may interest others besides newspaper and magazine editors.

He knew more about humans than any other man I have ever known.

Siddall's analysis of human nature revealed to him this one simple but all-embracing fact:

Human beings were more interested in themselves than in anything else.

Whenever I meet a man who has conspicuously mastered an important job, I try to get him to answer a question: "How do you do it?" I once asked Sid to jot down a brief answer to that question, and here it is, published for the first time:

"Every human being likes to see himself in reading matter just as he likes to look at himself in a mirror. The ideal article for a magazine would be one in which every reader could find his own name. The nearest approach would be a group photograph of all the readers so that each reader could take an afternoon off and find himself or herself.

"One reason fiction sells so tremendously is that human beings like to read about people like themselves, with whom they have various situations to deal with, whether successful or not. And what is the fundamental reason newspapers are read so widely is that individual readers see themselves mentioned in the paper. I don't mean that he sees his own name. I mean he sees things happen to individuals which might happen to him, or sees up a cent and more in the first few minutes for the markets looked rather bullish and then was half a point higher in another hour, some lower at noon. # New York Stock Market Strengthens With Point Gains Over Broad List

KRESGE SOARS OVER 7 POINTS AT OPENING

Point gains were spread over a board list when the New York stock market strengthened after a mixed start. Call money open at 5 per cent. Kresge soared 7½ points on the initial sale.

Mathieson Alkali, Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies common and Utah Corp per gained 2 points.

Stocks showing point or better advances included American Sugar, American Woolen, Brooklyn Edison, Bethlehem Steel, Davison Chemical, Crucible, Gold States Steel, Jones Bros. Tea, Maxwell "A," Studebaker, White Motor, Strombers, Stewart-Warner, Reynolds Spring, United Drug, Nash Motors, American Express, Atlantic Gulf & West Indies preferred.

Lorrer Central rose 2¾.

The market continued very dull.

International Harvester dropped 1¼ to within a fraction of the low of the year on publication of the government's suit to dissolve the corporation into three separate units.

Foundation Co. set a new high for the year for the third consecutive market day. Foundation Company stock is being bulled on a story that it will be advanced to a level in keeping with United States Realty and Improvement and then exchange share for share. The latter sounds plausible but unlikely. With Realty stock selling 20 points above Foundation, it would seem a good time early for insiders to be promulgating plans.

HARVESTER CO. TO FIGHT SUIT, SAYS NESBITT

R. H. Nesbitt, Boston branch manager of the International Harvester Company of America, today issued a statement in reply to the petition of United States Attorney-General Daugherty for dissolution of the company into three separate corporations, with wholly distinct stockholders and officers.

According to Nesbitt, the petition is a continuation of an suit brought against the Harvester Company by the Department of Justice eleven years ago. Nine years ago the company was acquitted, he said, by the court, and by the admission of the Attorney-General of any unfair practices.

TEST PERIOD EXPIRES.

The court's decree provided that at the end of a test period, now expired, the government might ask the court to determine whether free competition exists in the farm implement industry. This, said Nesbitt, is the step Attorney-General Daugherty has now taken.

"As we understand it," Mr. Nesbitt added, "the issue raised by the present petition relates to competitive conditions, and does not charge the company with unduly raising prices for farm implements. During the past few years the whole farm industry has been in a depressed situation, which reflects directly upon the farmer. High costs of labor, materials and transportation have raised manufacturing costs, while prices of farm products have fallen.

"We are confident we can show the court the company is not responsible for these conditions, and that prices of harvesting machinery are the result of vigorous competition."

DEMANDS NEW DECREE.

Attorney General Daugherty's petition, filed in the Federal District Court at St. Paul, Minn., asks the court to enter a new decree, holding that the Harvester Company is still a combination in restraint of trade, monopolizing and attempting to monopolize trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The petition cites specifically the International Harvester Company, the International Harvester Company of America, the International Stock Yards Company, the Wisconsin Lumber Company, The Illinois Northern Railway and the Chicago, West Pullman and Southern Railroad and their officers and directors as parties to the alleged combination in restraint of trade.

Rats Rat

Rats will not starve to death for what comes. Feed them something which destroys them and keep everything at it. Martin's Powder is designed for just this purpose. It is a rat food to be fed to the rats; when eaten by them it forms a virus in their bodies which kills them. Rats will not suddenly in a house it is usually in the walls or floors, and they will die where a lot of work to get out. Martin's Powder does not cause rats to leave open where they expire, for it is characteristic of rats that they always leave a place where they get sick.

Martin's powder is sold by drug and department stores in New England for 40c and $1.20 per can. Six and $1.20 by mail. Postage rates vary according to the postal zones. Send money order, cash or check with mail orders. Shows different powders. Be sure and name kind when ordering. Registered in Mass.

To Help the Nation—

Help the Farmers

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

R. J. Cromie, able publisher of the Vancouver Sun, writes strongly indorsing Mr. Baruch's suggestion for a great wheat pool to protect prices.

Mr. Cromie says: "So far as Canada is concerned, the co-operative marketing of Western Canada's wheat crop is getting nearer every day."

Mr. Cromie speaks with great enthusiasm of "that genius, Aaron Sapiro, who organized co-operative fruit selling in British Columbia, and says that Canada counts on him to help harness the wheat growers."

Mr. Baruch, says Mr. Cromie, is behind Sapiro, helping him to help the farmers.

If President Harding can arrange to have the United States, which is rich enough, finance the farmers' wheat pool, that ought to help one big problem and incidentally make quite a difference in the election of 1924.

What usually happens to farmers, disorganized, with finance interested in exploiting instead of helping them, is reflected in the calm grain report of the day: "With the crop read" to be harvested, grain finds its lowest level.

It always goes down when the farmers HAVE it.

When it gets out of the farmers' hands and into the hands of the gamblers, then it goes UP.

Vodka, Friend of the Czars

They Didn't Know It

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Beer flows freely in Moscow, many new breweries and beer halls are thriving.

Bolshevik government has decided that the people may have light beer, but mustn't have vodka, first cousin of our whiskey, made of 40 per cent. alcohol and 60 per cent. water. It is a white, almost tasteless drink and was the best friend the Czars ever had. They didn't know it, or know much of anything else.

Norman Hapgood, just back from a visit to Russia, says that if the Czar's dictator comes up he will give back to the Russians their vodka, a better servant than any secret police in keeping populations down and stupified. Mr. Hapgood will write of his recent travels in Europe, in Hearst's International Magazine. Intelligent men, that want facts, seen clearly and told simply by an able, well informed and well balanced man, will read Hapgood.

War Pays Sometimes

Suppose We Had NOT Fought

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

W. R. Day, Secretary of State under McKinley and later Justice of the Supreme Court, is dead. He is praised for his efforts to PREVENT the Spanish-American War.

Other agencies, particularly the Hearst newspapers, felt that the war was necessary, and it came.

Had the war been postponed then, it would surely have come eventually. Today Cuba, if still under Spanish misrule, would represent a constant danger, involving complications with other European powers as well as Spain.

Had the war been postponed the Philippines would still be Spanish. Filipinos would lack public schools and would be at the mercy of Japan. Sometimes having a war is like taking an unpleasant dose of medicine. It's a good thing to have it over.

The People CAN'T

The Monopolist Can

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

The Supreme Court of the United States says that West Virginia has no right to monopolize its own natural gas. The case was decided in favor of Pennsylvania and Ohio, two States that need gas from West Virginia. The decision was probably righteous, but how do you explain THIS?

The State itself, which means ALL THE PEOPLE of West Virginia, have NOT the right to monopolize their natural gas below the ground. But if PRIVATE INDIVIDUALS got hold of that natural gas, THEY could monopolize it to their heart's content, send it to Ohio, Pennsylvania, Timbuctoo, or refuse to send it, and the Supreme Court, obeying the Constitution, would uphold them. In other words, the private individual can do as a monopolist what all the inhabitants of the State can't do. Puzzle over that, dearly beloved American sovereigns.

Unnatural Things Die

Nations and Languages Must Grow

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Jugo Slavia, one of the made-to-order nations built up after the war, is in bad condition, its local Parliaments abolished and one of the assembled nationalities undertaking to coerce the others.

It is easy enough to create a nation artificially and put it on its feet for a while; not so easy to make it keep standing up. Nations, like LANGUAGES, form THEMSELVES; you cannot artificially create them or give them life.

Look at the Turks, more powerful and independent than they have been in a hundred years, after their recent utter defeat. The Turks are naturally homogeneous, united.

Whatever their other defects, they stand together. They are a NATURAL NATION, and as such will outlive the artificial nations, created after the war, in a wave of sentiment, directed by cunning.

ARMENIAN BOYS ARE AIDED

CAVALLA, Greece, July 13.—Two thousand Armenian boys have arrived and been installed as farm colonists here by the Near East Relief. By hard work they will be able in time to establish themselves as individual farmers.

These orphans are working in the vicinity where Paul was imprisoned and wrote his epistle to the Philippians. They are under the direction of Howard McAfee, of Kansas City.

Treatment of Veterans

Editor Boston American:

In your paper I noticed a piece about the Harding Administration by a man, namely, Alex G. Hagfied.

I simply wanted to say that what he said was the absolute truth, and he could have said a great deal more which could easily be substantiated by other ex-service men here in Massachusetts that have been abused by this Administration.

I am a disabled veteran and have been trying to get treatment for the past four years.

President Harding not only made promises when he was out to be elected for President, he went to different cantonments during the war and told the men what was waiting for them when they returned from France. We don't forget him, and every one of or organizations won't forget him at the next presidential election.

FRANK A. NEWHALL.

Plenty Real Men

Editor Boston American:

In reply to Helen Silver in the Voice of New England, July 13—H. Silver must be meeting bootleggers and cheap dance hall sports and the sad-faced boys, perhaps, are boys that lost their school sweethearts. There are still plenty of real men.

M. GOLDMAN.

Nearly Starving

Editor Helping Hand:

Is there some one to aid me with my rent, which is fifteen dollars a month, until I can get strong enough to work, something easy at first, and also a cape, size 50 to 52 bust, so that I can go to church. I am unable to buy papers so can't be informed. Dear editor, I am really starving, living on one small loaf of bread for three days. Now I am out of bread and have nothing to live on over Saturday. Is there any way I might get a loaf of bread tomorrow, Sunday. I got so weak for going hungry. It seems to put me in a dazed condition. Please, dear editor, see if you cannot help me through your readers.

MRS. M. H.

Saturday, as American reporter visited Mrs. M. H. at the request of the editor and found this seventy-per-old woman just returned from an hour's search of food. We sent her five dollars from the Helping Hand Fund, and four dollars which were donated by two of the men in the office here, as told in a story on another page today. The editor wishes to take this opportunity to thank those generous people whose donations to the Fund made this quick aid possible.

Wants Medical Books

Editor Helping Hand:

Is there any doctor or anyone else having any books on the art of healing the sick, such as medicine, osteopathy or other means of healing, to dispose, they would be greatly appreciated by the writer. I would also appreciate a copy of "Science and Health" or any other Christian Science work. The writer is a student, trying to make his way up in the world. I do a lot of charitable work in the line of mechanical and electrical treatment. I would be glad to do a little work days in return for some books, as I am on hospital duty nights.

A. S. M.

SNOWDEN PROPOSES AND LLOYD GEORGE DISPOSES

By Herbert Kaufman

WHEN Lloyd George became chancellor of the exchequer, owners of great estates began to sell their acres and invest the proceeds abroad.

The little Welshman's land reform laws and his income and inheritance tax propositions were anathematized as menaces to British stability—hardly less radical than the demands of Simon de Montfort and Oliver Cromwell in their respective days.

Time has since taught the shrewdness and moderation of his policies. The greatest of living statesmen simply anticipated an inevitable conflict between classes and masses, and boldly vaccinated the situation against extremists who otherwise would have seized control of affairs.

Now, as Philip Snowden futilely proposes the abolition of capital and the replacement of Liberal monarchism with a Communistic State, former cities behold a Saint George challenge to the dragon influences of Parliament and defend their rights and property against cancellation and confiscation.

He supports the soundness of present systems, denies that labor extremists have demonstrated a basic weakness in the existing form of government, then warns his confreres to acquaint themselves with conditions, seek the causes promoting unrest, and remedy any circumstances likely to provoke perilous political experiments.

Give an inch and save an ell. Democracies are successful only so long as they continue to serve adjustment and equalization. Neither autocrats nor anarchists recognize a middle course, and consequently must always fail. The one foolishly refuses to alter a faulty structure, the other blindly insists upon its utter destruction. The wiser man examines and then promptly repairs.

Defying the Law of Gravity

How much are you paying for ham? The butcher buys pork products 23 to 33 per cent. cheaper than last year. But according to Thomas Wilson, the packer, there is no indication that consumers have therefore increased their purchases.

Retail prices have lately lost the habit of corresponding with wholesale quotations.

Bread loaves remain the same despite six-dollar flour.

Potatoes rot in the fields for want of markets, while greengrocers blithely take usual toll. Recent heavy cuts in crude oil are still to be reflected in gasoline.

Hotels revise their menus with every appreciable advance in meat and vegetables, but strangely forget to reduce charges as edibles become cheaper.

Order bacon and eggs for lunch tomorrow and note the check.

And yet Sir Isaac Newton insisted that "what goes up must come down."

Several Skowhegan folk had actually seen Dr. Franklin and found his "electric fluid" a never-ending topic of conversation during Charles E. Coffin's boyhood.

It seems incredible what development can be witnessed in the course of a single life span.

We who casually press buttons to light lamps and stoves, and start horseless carriages, sewing machines, irrigation pumps, railway locomotives and aeroplanes, will do well to recall that the telephone was demonstrated at the Philadelphia Centennial, and sputtering arc lights were a source of wonderment there.

Thirty years after its establishment (in 1893) General Electric Company sales have grown from $13,000,000 to $243,000,000, and the value of its plants and equipment from $4,000,000 to $167,000,000.

In 1893 the commercial world was staggered by the Baring bank failure. Pessimists proclaimed an indefinite period of depression. Business would be prostrated for at least a decade. The good old days were gone. Huntington, Gould, Vanderbilt and Astor had taken all the cream opportunities.

Read the verification of those prophesies in subsequently promoted steel trusts, the automobile industry, Westinghouse projects, and a Federal treasury holding even billion dollars' worth of foreign notes at hand, and with its money the only currency at par.

Jeremiah always forgets the inventors.

The Spigot and the Bunghole

The Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, founded by a former butcher and ex-street-car driver (whose children are distinguished art patrons and international social celebrities) insures the life of its chairman for a million dollars; the annual premium is $72,000.

Hardheaded directors figure that there is probably that much difference between the executive ability of Thomas E. Mitten and available resources.

Your Snowdens don't recognize the rarity of competence. Nor does Congress—which largely accounts for the billion-dollar bungles at Washington.

Correspondents accompanying Mr. Harding wire their papers that the President intends to investigate the deal through which the United States acquired its unprofitable Alaska railroad. Certain interests will be accused of misrepresentation and possibly worse practices.

The plaint is made that Federal experts were deceived. So long as we save at the spigot and spend at the bunghole by offering office-boy salaries to national managers, penny-foolish America will suffer just such consequences.

France discovers a pack of grafters operating in devastated regions. The scandal reveals an unparalleled spectacle of swindling and profiteering.

Claims for twenty-eight times original losses have been paid. Two successive owners received 500,000 francs compensation for enemy damage to one chateau.

These amounts, of course, have been charged against Germany's account.

Poincare, resuming Shylock's role, waves interference from the Ruhr and prepares to carve his pound of flesh—whatever betides.

Manhattan policemen find a discharged Doughboy incoherently laughing in Central Park and bring him to Bellevue Hospital for observation. In all likelihood a mere case of hysteria. The poor lad was doubtlessly recalling how they sent him over there "to vanquish tyranny and make the world safe for democracy."
